VAN SWERINGENS BUY SIXTH RAILROAD

ACQUISITION WILL PERMIT IMPORTANT WEDGE TOWARD EAST

Deal Gives Owners Dock Facilities On Two Lakes.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—With the acquisition of their sixth railroad—the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh—the Van Sweringen brothers today held with their Erie railroad connection, an important wedge in the eastern rail situation.

The brothers paid $100 a share for 67 per cent of the total stock of the B. R. and P., or a total of about $11,055,000 of the $16,500,000 of common and preferred stock outstanding.

In a statement issued in New York last night announcing the purchase, the Van Sweringens said:

"We have in mind that this step may facilitate the eastern grouping in an effort to reach an agreement which will be fair to all roads concerned and in the general public interest. Mr. W. T. Noonan continues as president of the road which will be operated as in the past in the interests of the territory served."

Two major attainments in the railroad field have been consummated by the Van Sweringens in their latest move—an unheralded one that aroused intense interest in railroad circles.

They have gained further foothold in the east, which with their Erie system gives opportunity of grouping certain eastern railroads into one network, and they have secured excellent docking facilities on Lake Ontario and Lake Erie and tapped the important coal and steel area which the B. R. and P. serves.

The latest railroad purchase of the Van Sweringens is the sixth important link in the chain of their operations in undertaking to form an all-embracing railroad system in the east.

Their first venture was the Nickel Plate—still their main road. Later, the two brothers became interested in the Erie, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Wheeling and Lake Erie, and the Pere Marquette railroads.

HITCH-HIKER WILL WRITE ABOUT TRIP

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10.—Wiley Paden, hitchhiking artist of Salt Lake City, Utah, arrived in Columbus today for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Higgins.

Paden is making a Salt Lake City-New York tour investigating hitchhiking conditions for the "Scenic Motorist," publication of the Utah State Automobile Association. He carries good will messages from the Salt Lake City Telegram on which he has been a staff artist, and from radio station KIDL.

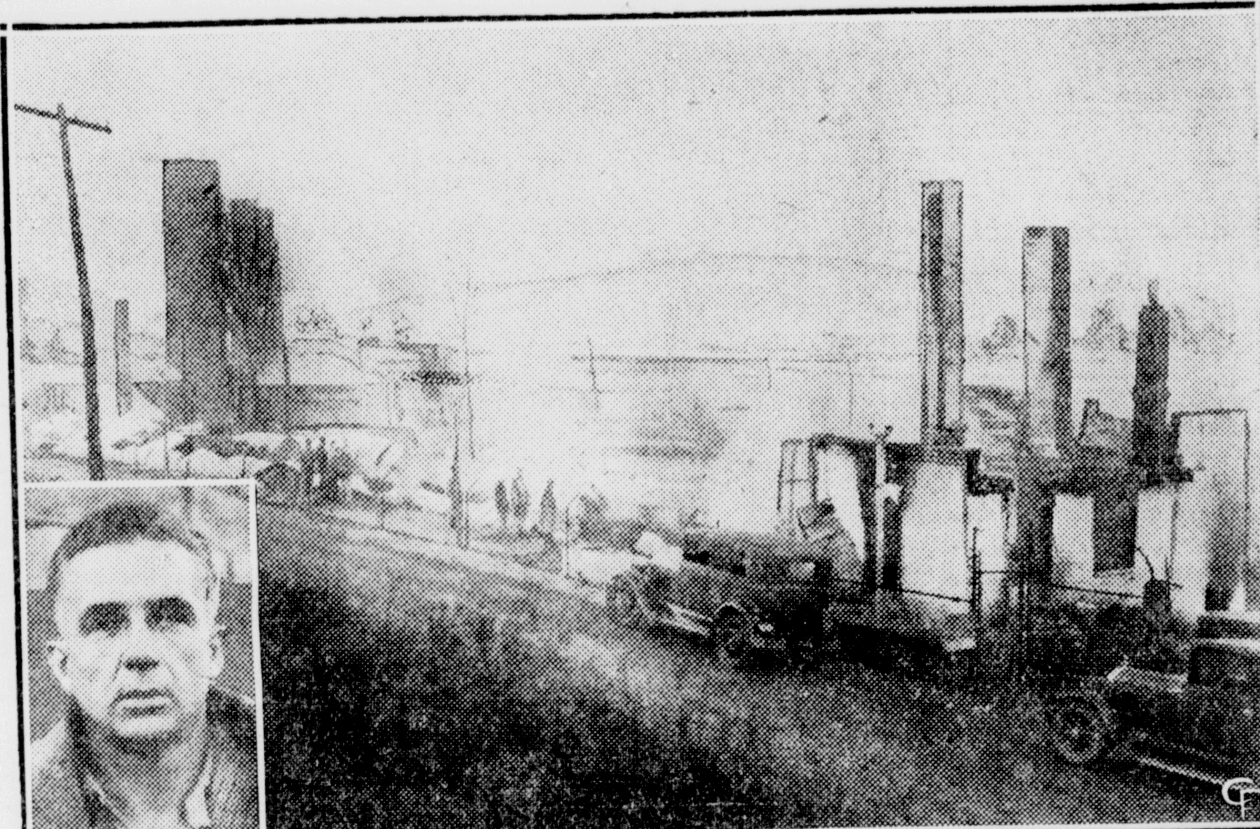

Paden is an honor graduate of the University of Utah and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Paden, former Portsmouth, O., residents.

Her Show Raided

A temporary injunction has been granted restraining police from interfering with performances of Mae West's play "Pleasure Man" until after the court hearing of Miss West, above, and the 55 members of the company. Police raided the show when it opened in New York, arrested the cast and its author, Miss West, who was playing in "Diamond Jim" in another Gotham theater.

PRISONERS DIE WHEN TRAPPED BY FIRE

Ruins of the dormitory of Ohio state brick plant at Junction City, O., where twenty or more prisoners are believed to have perished in a fire that swept the prison sleeping quarters. William O'Malley, inset, prison baker, preparing bread while his fellow prisoners slept, smelled smoke, and gave the alarm, later ripping down a steel door to release the 276 trapped prisoners in the building. Probers have been told that the men were unable to get out of the flimsy wooden structure because of barred doors and thus suffered agony, helplessly burning to death.

WOMEN SHOULD URGE PEACE SPEAKER AT CONVENTION SAYS

National Council of Catholic Women in Final Session.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—Loose ends of the eighth annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Women were gathered up today when delegates went into their final session.

Such important matters as election of five national directors to serve for terms of three years, and the adoption of next year's program of action were dealt with.

The reports of two days' discussion groups were heard together with reports of recent international conferences of Catholic organizations. Mary W. Carey and Sarah Weadick presided.

The climax of the four-day session will be the banquet.

Mary C. Hawks, national president, will be toastmistress.

The speakers of the evening are Mrs. Arthur Mullen, of Omaha, Neb.; Anna Dill Garble, York, Pa.; Isabel Carcyole Deecher, Birmingham, Ala.; the Rev. John J. Burke, general secretary of the national council.

Elizabeth Kite of Washington, D. C., in her address on "The Catholic Church and International Peace," challenged the women to use their energy to make the new world peace treaty a success.

"The power of each individual is slight, but the united effort of the women of the country can bring about the day when peace is universal," Miss Kite said.

MAN SHOTS WOMAN AND SELF ON STREET

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 10.—An unidentified colored man shot and killed a colored woman here today, then calmly reloaded his revolver and killed himself.

The shooting took place near a vacant lot and was witnessed by several nearby residents. No one was acquainted with the couple.

The woman was walking down the street witnesses said, when the man ran up to her, drew the revolver and shot her. They said he shot her again as she lay at his feet, screaming.

The man then reloaded the weapon—an old fashioned revolver—and placing it to his temple, pulled the trigger.

An employer's card bearing the name Elmo Cooper, was found in the man's clothing. The woman carried an empty purse.

SERIES STATISTICS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—The official receipts and attendance figures for the 1928 world series announced today, were:

Paid attendance 199,075.
Net receipts $777,290.
Commission's share $77,729.
Players' share $419,736.60.
Clubs and league's share, $279,824.40.

The players, therefore, will divide a larger share than ever before.

Attendance records were broken for one game, the first at St. Louis, which was witnessed by 39,062 fans.

HOOVER TURNS ATTENTION TO CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK STATE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Herbert Hoover turned his attention today to his presidential campaign in New York state, the territory which has become the dilemma of the east for both parties.

The Republican presidential candidates will confer at his headquarters with Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeeman, and H. Edmund MacHold, state Republican chairman, receiving a report of the status of the Hoover campaign in Alfred E. Smith's home state.

Hoover will seek to learn particularly what effect the gubernatorial candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt, 1920 Democratic vice-presidential aspirant, will have on Smith's chances in New York.

Smith selected Roosevelt personally because of his vote-getting ability.

Roosevelt is making a bid for Republican votes in New York. When he arrived home from Georgia recently, he told a group of his friends at Hyde Park that he would, if elected, try to be "a governor—not a Democratic governor," that he never had been much of a partisan, and he had voted for many Republican candidates for town offices.

Hoover has received a favorable report from Senator Borah of Idaho regarding the situation in the west. Borah assured the candidate he would be elected, on the basis of an investigation on his western tour.

NOMINEES PLEDGE TO ATTEMPT CHANGE IN ELECTION LAWS

Planks Favoring Women Also Included By Democrats

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 10.—Changes in election laws which would permit optional use of voting machines and elimination of annual registration were proposed in a platform of six planks made public today by Democratic candidates for the state legislature.

Under election law changes proposed by the delegation, election days would be made legal holidays. In addition there would be a provision for a recount of ballots within ten days after election on deposit of $10 to be refunded if fraud is found.

Other planks are:

Discouraging child labor by forcing employers to pay damages in addition to the workmen's compensation where a child employee is injured through negligence of employers to provide safeguards.

A forty-eight hour week for women.

Construction of Apple Creek sanitarium and creation of a commission to survey and report a program of improvement of institutions and hospitals for the feeble minded.

Continuation of fight to curtail school expenses.

Repeal of antiquated taxation statutes, exemption of automobiles from personal tax, reduction of gas tax to two cents and reduction of license fee to $1.

Twelve Dead in Collapse of Building

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 10.—Rescuers, tunneling from adjacent basements, today had taken twelve bodies from the tangled mass of masonry and debris left by the collapse of a seven-story building under construction here.

Twenty-eight injured persons were missing—most of them workmen and electricians who were in the building.

As the structure suddenly crumbled, its walls fell into two intersecting streets crushing many pedestrians and burying others.

It was reported that the architect who had designed the building witnessed the collapse and committed suicide in the street.

Parliament, which was in session when the disaster occurred immediately adjourned.

POOR BALL PLAYERS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—Each member of the world's champion New York Yankees who receives a full share of the world series profits will be enriched by approximately $6140.00, while each St. Louis Cardinal who gets a full share will receive $4233.10.

WORKERS' PARTY CANDIDATES ARRESTED ON RIOTING CHARGE

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Oct. 10.—Two workers' party candidates were held in the Belmont County Jail today on charges of inciting a riot at Martins Ferry, and for failure to pay $25 fines assessed on charges of disorderly conduct.

They are Israel Amter, candidate for the U. S. Senate on the workers' party ticket and Carl Hacker, candidate for lieutenant governor on the same ticket. Both are from Cleveland.

Arrest of the two followed a raid on a meeting at Martins Ferry during which police were forced to use tear bombs.

The meeting was broken up while speakers were criticizing Martins Ferry officials for breaking up a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting last August.

Amter and Hacker were arraigned before Mayor Howard A. Duff, fined on the riot and disturbance charges, and bound over to the grand jury under $200 bond each.

STORMS DELAY START OF ZEPPELIN FLIGHT

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Ger. Oct. 10.—A prospective loehn, or kot, strong wind from the Alps, threatened today to delay further the start of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin for the United States.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, was optimistic, however. He said he would start as soon as possible—even today if weather reports from the Atlantic improved suddenly. The area of depression at sea was moving rapidly eastward.

The loehn was an unknown quantity. This birthplace of dirigibles is on the southern border of Germany, on Lake Constance, which divides Germany from Switzerland. Poonhs sometimes threaten for days, then suddenly break loose within an hour or two, lasting for one or sometimes two days.

Dr. Eckener had intended leaving this morning on the hazardous flight to the United States, but he received word that he might encounter storms that would endanger the fortunate passengers who bid so highly for places in the luxurious compartments of the Graf Zeppelin.

SPECIAL TRAIN PREPARED FOR SMITH'S SOUTHERN CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith took a day off from campaigning today and went to the dentist.

"I'm going to have this day to myself," the governor said as he flagged campaign councillors and newspapermen away with a wave of his brown derby. "It will be the last day I will have to myself in this campaign."

There were suspicions among members of his personal party that he intended to have a few political visitors at his hotel suite—"Lucky Headquarters," he calls it—and that he wanted to be let alone before he starts south at 11 p. m. for the first campaign trip.

A Democratic presidential nominee has taken in Dixie since the Civil War.

His special train of eleven cars, being polished in the railroad yards to accommodate the largest party the governor has taken on a campaign tour. There will be thirty-six members of his personal party, besides thirty-seven newspapermen and seven photographers. He will use the same train he rode on his western trip.

The eleven cars will consist of the private car "St. Nicholas," owned by his friend William F. Kenney, an observation drawing room car, a club car for conferences, shower baths and barbering, an office car with typewriters for correspondents, three Pullman compartments, a diner with twenty-four hour service, a work car equipped with mimeograph machines, an extra sleeper and a baggage car.

The governor's personal party will include Mrs. Smith, their two daughters, Mrs. John A. Warner and Mrs. Francis J. Quillinan, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, wife of the artist and a native of Virginia, Norman H. Davis, former under-secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet, Kenny, Rep. Joseph W. Byrns, Dem., Tenn., a physician, a nephew of the governor, a New York court judge, a transportation manager, a radio director, two advance agents, a director of some of his publicity, two press representatives, an "assistant in charge of literature and baggage," an assistant "in charge of supplies," a mimeograph operator, two secret service men, three stenographers, two typists, a secretary, two telegraph representatives and a page.

THREE POLICEMEN CONVICTED; FACE LONG PRISON TERMS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Three Philadelphia police officers found guilty of extortion after a special grand jury started an investigation of extensive racketeering, today waited sentence that could reach a maximum of 172 years in prison.

Two of the officers, Captain William C. Kneel and John Sells, pleaded guilty to the charge after District Attorney John A. Monaghan disclosed he had $5000 that had been collected from bootleggers while Herbert Layre was found guilty by a jury yesterday.

Operators of saloons testified that Layre collected about $500 a week in protection money.

Layre has appealed.

Meanwhile Mayor Harry Mackey and Monaghan are at slight variance on the circumstances surrounding the alleged police connection with the vast underworld chain.

"Let me say right here that I have not seen any evidence of any police graft during my administration but if there is any it ought to come out as a result of the recent transfers," Mayor Mackey said.

To this statement, Monaghan replied:

"The facts are that I have in my possession $5000 seized from Captain Kneel, who has pleaded guilty. This money was part of graft collected from saloonkeepers between March of this year, when the police department was organized on ward lines and the end of August, when this investigation began."

DIRIGIBLE FLYING TO HOME HANGAR

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 10.—The giant dirigible, Los Angeles soared over Cleveland at 10:05 a. m. today, on its way to the home hangar at Lakehurst, N. J.

After sailing over the downtown district of this city, the big blimp headed for Akron and the east.

Noted Novelist

Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart, noted novelist, short story writer, and playwright, has joined the forces of women working for the election of Herbert Hoover.

RELIGIOUS ISSUE RAPPED BY WITT

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 10.—Carrying out promises made in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor, Peter Witt, of Cleveland, formally opened a speaking campaign here last night on behalf of Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee.

Witt addressed 3,000 persons and spoke for more than two hours. He discussed issues, both national and state, and closed with a denunciation of Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Herbert Hoover and President Calvin Coolidge.

"There is only one thing charged against Governor Smith, and that is his religion," Witt declared. "Think of religion. If they had any they wouldn't fight about it."

Witt then characterized Governor Smith as "one of the greatest characters of American political life," and asked, "Is Governor Smith, because he is Catholic, going to be denied election because of his religion? Are we going over, again and again, the religious wars of the sixteenth century, done in the name of Him who died on the cross?"

BABE BAMS THREE

YANKEES CHAMPS IN FACT; EASILY BEST TEAM OF ALL TIME

Ruth's Play Reddeems Series; Babe Is Sport's King.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—There is a well founded conviction in baseball circles today that the New York Yankees are champions of the world in fact as well as in name.

Their smashing triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals in four straight games, a triumph based on sound pitching and built up by the greatest exhibition of extra base hits ever displayed by any ball club in a world series, stamp the Yankees as easily the best baseball team of all time.

And standing out today as far the greatest of players is our old friend, Babe Ruth.

The 1928 world series which ended so abruptly at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon with the 7 to 3 victory of the new champions, might easily have passed into baseball history as one of the worst and most farcical ever played. The St. Louis Cardinals, who entered the post season engagement with favorites to defeat a supposedly crippled opponent, did their best to make it so.

Their failure was even more startling, more complete and more dismal, than that of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who went down to defeat in four straight games before these same Yankees a year ago.

The series was in a fair way to degenerate into one of the saddest jokes in the history of the national pastime.

Babe Ruth changed all that. Singlehanded, he was a ball team, nay, a whole ball game, in himself. He was just about a whole world series.

There was only one thing that could have saved this sad "serious" and the Babe had it. Superlative baseball, offensive and defensive, a brave display of team spirit and a spectacular burst of individual effort, the gay spirit of a boy when it was appropriate and the grim spirit of relentless fight when it was needed. Babe Ruth had all these New York Yankees are speeding homeward in triumph, planning ways and means to get rid of the largest share of world series booty ever divided by a winning ball club.

A cold recital of the records which Ruth assisted in making hardly paints an adequate picture of the big fellow's contribution to the 1928 series. To appreciate Babe's part, you had to see him up there at the plate yesterday, clapping his hands and doffing his cap in mock appreciation of the spirited efforts of the entire Cardinal team as it stormed around the four blue clad umpires in the blistering seventh inning, trying to have him called out on strikes. And then see him a moment later, when the argument has been won—as baseball arguments always are, if you stop to think about it—by the umpires and the game is on. Another tremendous home run.

FRAUDULENT USE OF ABSENTEE BALLOTS PIKE COUNTY CLAIM

Bi-Partisans File Complaint With State Secretary

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10.—As a result of a complaint filed by twenty voters of the county, Secretary of State Brown today was expected to designate an assistant supervisor of elections to assume charge of the issuing of absentee voters' ballots in Pike County.

The complaint, signed by ten Republicans and ten Democrats, charged irregularities in the issuance of absentee voters' ballots at past elections, and Brown's action would be designed to prevent possibility of fraudulent voting in the November election.

The representative Brown is to appoint will pass on all applications for absentee voters' ballots and none will be issued except by him.

In the meantime Brown is investigating charges against the Pike County Board of Elections, members of which were called in before him Monday. The complaint against the board includes the following allegations:

1.—That the board makes no provision for safe-guarding and preservation of ballots and official records.

2.—No records are kept of the board's official proceedings.

3.—Absent voters' ballots are issued in violation of law.

4.—That absentee voters' ballots have been cast by persons not residents of the county nor even existing.

5.—That a member of the board executed false affidavits for absent voters' ballots.

Although Pike County is the second smallest county in the state, there were 692 absentee voters' ballots cast in the 1926 election, more than were cast in some of the largest counties.

Are we going over, again, the religious wars of the sixteenth century, done in the name of Him who died on the cross?"

Witt then characterized Governor Smith as "one of the great characters of American political life," and asked, "Is Governor Smith, because he is Catholic, going to be denied election because of his religion?" Are we going over, again, the religious wars of the sixteenth century, done in the name of Him who died on the cross?"

BABE BAMS THREE

BABE RUTH

YANKEES CHAMPS IN FACT; EASILY BEST TEAM OF ALL TIME

Ruth's Play Redemptive Series; Babe Is Sport's King.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—There is a well founded conviction in baseball circles today that the New York Yankees are champions of the world in fact as well as in name.

Their smashing triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals in four straight games, a triumph based on sound pitching and built up by the greatest exhibition of extra base hits ever displayed by any ball club in a world series, stamp the Yankees as easily the best baseball team of all time.

And standing out today as far the greatest of players is our old friend, Babe Ruth.

The 1928 world series which ended so abruptly at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon with the 7 to 3 victory of the new champions, might easily have passed on into baseball history as one of the worst and most farcical ever played. The St. Louis Cardinals, who entered the post season engagement strong favorites to defeat a supposedly crippled opponent, did their best to make it so.

Their failure was even more startling, more complete and more dismal, than that of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who went down to defeat in four straight games before these same Yankees a year ago.

The series was in a fair way to degenerate into one of the saddest jokes in the history of the national pastime.

Babe Ruth changed all that. Singlehanded, he was a ball team, nay, a whole ball game, in himself. He was just about a whole world series.

There was only one thing that could have saved this "serious" and the Babe had it. Superlative baseball, offensive, and defensive, a brave display of team spirit and a spectacular burst of individual effort, the gay spirit of a boy when it was appropriate and the grim spirit of relentless fight when it was needed. Babe Ruth had all these ready in the emergency.

The New York Yankees are speeding homeward in triumph, planning ways and means to get rid of the largest share of world series booty ever divided by a winning ball club.

A cold recital of the records which Ruth assisted in making hardly paints an adequate picture of the big fellow's contribution to the 1928 series. To appreciate Babe's part, you had to see him up there at the plate yesterday, clapping his hands and doffing his cap in mock appreciation of the spirited efforts of the entire Cardinal team as it stormed around the four blue clad umpires in the blistering seventh inning, trying to have him called out on strikes.

And then see him a moment later, when the argument has been won—as baseball arguments always are, if you stop to think about it—by the umpires and the game is on. Another tremendous home run.

FRAUDULENT USE OF ABSENTEE BALLOTS PIKE COUNTY CLAIM

Bi-Partisans File Complaint With State
Secretary

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10.—As a result of a complaint filed by twenty voters of the county, Secretary of State Brown today was expected to designate an assistant supervisor of elections to assume charge of the issuing of absentee voters' ballots in Pike County.

The complaint, signed by ten Republicans and ten Democrats, charged irregularities in the issuance of absentee voters' ballots at past elections, and Brown's action would be designed to prevent possibility of fraudulent voting in the November election.

The representative Brown is to appoint will pass on all applications for absentee voters' ballots and none will be issued except by him.

In the meantime Brown is investigating charges against the Pike County Board of Elections, members of which were called in before him Monday. The complaint against the board includes the following allegations:

1.—That the board makes no provision for safe-keeping and preservation of ballots and official records.

2.—No records are kept of the board's official proceedings.

3.—Absent voters' ballots are issued in violation of law.

4.—That absent voters' ballots have been cast by persons not residents of the county nor even existing.

5.—That a member of the board executed false affidavits for absent voters' ballots.

Although Pike County is the second smallest county in the state, there were 692 absent voters' ballots cast in the 1926 election, more than were cast in some of the largest counties.

HERE'S RECORD OF YANKEES

Yankees won eight straight games, swept two series.
Lou Gehrig drove in nine runs, exceeding Meusel's figure made in 1923.

WHEN AL WAS IN PRIVATE LIFE

If Governor Al Smith, of New York, isn't elected president of the United States, what would be the next job of this active man, who is retiring as governor? In 1920, following a Republican national landslide, Smith wasn't governor for two years. He was chairman of the board of the United States Trucking company, New York. Here we have a picture of him taken the day he took over the reins in 1921. It was the only time he ever was beaten. And one of the rare instances he has been in private life.

Quickest Way to Sweeten Stomach

PERHAPS that sour condition of your stomach is due to an over-stimulation of gastric acid. A sour stomach isn't very pleasant, and isn't very easy to remedy it. To neutralize the harmful acid and put your stomach in good order take a little "Pape's Diapensin" after meals, or whenever the need is felt.

This fine remedy removes the cause of the trouble and promotes normal, healthy digestion. "Pape's Diapensin" is sold by all druggists at 60 cents a package, and is the remedy which is recommended by millions because it gives immediate relief in all cases of difficult and painful digestion. Be sure, therefore, to provide yourself with "Pape's Diapensin" today, so that stomach pain and digestive troubles need never worry you again. Or your stomach cause you discomfort. This form of relief has helped many who thought their disorders could not be helped.

WILMINGTON MAN APPOINTED HOME SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

WILMINGTON, O., Oct. 10.—An announcement was made here today that O. K. Probasco, former superintendent of Wilmington public schools, has been named director of education at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home in Xenia.

Probasco will take over the duties of his new office immediately.

When the Wilmington school board failed to offer Probasco a new contract last spring, the act led to a shakeup in the school system.

Probasco was superintendent of schools here for seven years, serving at Washington, C. H. O., before coming here.

H. W. Hodson, noted Ohio school man, succeeded Probasco here.

AUTHORITIES PROBE ALLEGED KIDNAPING OF SCHOOL GIRL

Authorities are on the trail of a man who is reported to have grabbed an 11-year-old Jamestown girl, forced her into his automobile and carried her six miles out in the country before releasing her late Monday afternoon.

The incident took place at the principal street intersection in the village.

The girl, Imalee Willis, whose father, Joseph Willis, is a school teacher, told authorities the stranger forced her to ride with him for about six miles. Then he asked her name and when she told him, he permitted her to get out of the car with the remark "The girl walked all the way back home and related the story. She described the man as shabbily dressed and said he was driving a touring car.

Authorities investigating the case believe the man lives in Dayton. Residents of the village are aroused since they fear there may be a repetition of the attempt.

Farm Notes

APPLES IN BRITAIN

Some, but not many, Ohio apples are marketed in the British Isles. More might be sold there if Ohio apple growers attended to details of packing and grading which are favored by the British buyers, according to the department of rural economics of the Ohio State University.

Recently a specialist in foreign marketing, belonging to the staff of the United States Department of Agriculture, pointed out that apples from western New York were well received on the British market and that these apples are quite sections of the United States.

The marketing of a barrel of apples is a very important matter in the sale of the apples abroad," said the specialist. "It discredits a good pack of apples to mark them with an indistinct rubber stamp or with a stencil which leaves blurred lettering. Clear and regular stenciling gives a business touch which impresses the buyers."

With this season's harvest, United States grading and packing inspection has been established in some of the shipping points in southeastern Ohio. Attention to the details of marking the packages will be well repaid, the university department believes, in the advantage in marketing the fruit.

Special music will also feature the lecture, which will last for one hour and seventeen minutes.

HUGE GATHERING IS EXPECTED TO HEAR CURTIS AT CLIFTON

One of the largest political gatherings ever held in the Seventh Congressional District is expected, October 26, when Charles Curtis, Republican vice-presidential candidate, speaks at Clifton, on the Greene and Clark County line, as a part of his swing through Ohio in the interest of the Hoover campaign.

Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, O., Republican gubernatorial candidate, will also be one of the principal speakers. All the state district candidates are expected to be present.

Indications from all parts of the district point to a large turnout of Republicans. Automobile caravans will be made up in some places and several delegations will be headed by brass bands.

The Colored Glee Club, of Urbana, will be a feature of the program, which will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Arrangements are being made by State Senator L. T. Marshall, Xenia, chairman of the Greene County Republican Executive Committee, and T. F. Hudson, Springfield, head of the Clark County Committee, aided by Republican leaders in the two counties.

The meeting will be held under a huge tent which will accommodate several thousand people.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

CAUSE FOR SINGING—Sing unto the Lord; for he hath done excellent things; this is known in all the earth.—Isa. 12:5.

SCHOOL, GO SLOW!

The above is the warning that meets the motorist's eye in thousands of cities and towns. There is good reason for it. The children come tearing out of school, full of enthusiasm as they resume their play. They are so running over with high spirits, that it is hard for them to look up and down the street as they cross.

Many communities place police officers near the school-houses at the opening and closing of school, and sometimes a patrol of school boys is appointed to warn the motorists. Such measures are highly desirable. Yet if the automobile drivers were cautious and considerate, no such precaution would be necessary. They would see of themselves the necessity for the utmost care.

The life of every little child should be precious in the sight of the motorist. It will only take him a few seconds to slow down when he sees the school sign. How much better than to run over some helpless child and bring anxiety or grief to its family!

A LOEB-LEOPOLD PAROLE

Intimation by the chairman of the Illinois board of pardons and paroles that a flaw in the commitment of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, jr., will make the young murderers eligible for parole six years hence, will shock public opinion.

When the two youths escaped the death penalty for the murder of little "Bobby" Franks, it was generally understood that a condition of the judicial clemency was that the culprits should never be eligible for parole. Even with this proviso there was a widespread feeling that the law's clemency had been strained under the barrage of confusing expert evidence and novel psychiatric theories.

If it should appear that a yet unexplained technical error of some kind crept into the mittimus there would be strong suspicion of a trick. The attendant cynicism would go far to shake public confidence in the impartial administration of the criminal law. As matters stand, the chairman of the parole board is constrained to describe Loeb and Leopold as "sons of wealth who are pampered pets" in the state penitentiary at Joliet.

It is to be hoped that the notorious cases will give rise to no more scandal that would make a mockery of "even handed justice."

Society is very cruel to the bootlegger. He is welcome among our best people, but he isn't taken in the front door. That's hardly fair.

SHIPS

There is a verse which goes like this:
If all the ships I have at sea
Should come a-sailing home to me,
Ah, well! the harbor would not hold
So many ships as there would be.

If all my ships came in from sea,
All through the years we are sending out ships. Some day a dear one dies. All the years you have been putting things in the ships—love and care and tenderness, or thoughtlessness and cruelty and disloyalty. And on that day the ships come home from sea. How about the cargoes then?

Can we say, then, with those other lines: "Oh skies be calm! Oh winds blow free—blow all my ships safe home to me?" Or will we be wishing that some ships might never come home again?

The ships will come in. Be sure of that.

JUST A LITTLE

Perhaps nobody would be sorry if we ended today's column with another verse or two. The author of this poem is unknown to the writer:

"This is the height of our deserts;
A little pity for life's hurts;
A little rain, a little sun,
A little sleep when work is done.

A little righteous punishment,
Less for our deeds than their intent;
A little pardon now and then,
Because we are but struggling men.

A little light to show the way,
A little guidance where we stray;
A little love before we pass
To rest beneath the kirkyard grass.

A little faith in days of change,
When life is stark and bare and strange;
A solace when our eyes are wet
With tears of longing and regret.

True it is that we can not claim
Unmeasured recompense or blame,
Because our way of life is small;
A little is the sum of all."

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK. — Alexander C. Herman, Central Press writer, whose only home always has been New York (a rarity), again conducts this column today. Here's his hint:

A little more than six years ago, Mamie (her real name doesn't matter), was a 12-year-old kid, as happy as any of the East Side children of the Ghetto. She lived in a large tenement with brothers, sisters, father and mother.

One day a queer middle-aged man, who boarded upstairs in-veighed her to his room. He disappeared soon after and never has been heard of since. But Mamie became a mother at 12.

It was shameful, and her family hushed up its disgrace. The authorities were not informed. The baby was put away in a foundling home.

The older members of the family cut their garments, and sat "chive" — the ritual for the dead, which entails a week's prayer and meditation, while the bereaved sit upon low stools. The girl mother was looked upon as dead.

A virtual outcast, the girl began working as housemaid. She is now 18, and has progressed to the position of nursemaid.

Every visiting day (once a fortnight) she goes to the home and sees her baby. But she is not allowed to tell him that she is his mother. She is merely Miss Mamie — "an awful nice lady."

Last visit she asked the youngster if he would like to go home with her. "No, ma'am," he replied. "I couldn't do that. This is my home."

Within a few months the boy will be six. Then, according to the rules of the institution, he will have to be taken away by the mother, or she will have to release him for permanent adoption. Being still a minor, she needs the consent of her own family to guarantee the child's safe keeping.

But her father and mother have disowned her. To them she is as dead. Perhaps their ire will mellow. If not, the girl will lose her baby forever.

Curtailment of immigration put a crimp in the lower East Side realty mart. Cherry Hill, Montgomery street, Monroe, and the rest of the Ghetto, which once was the first haven of the newly-arrived immigrants, has sunk into sorry days.

Landlords used to pack 'em in four-five in one room. And they would charge up-town prices. As long as the "greenies" couldn't speak the new mother tongue, they hung by, glad to be congregated with others who spoke the language of their nativity.

By the time they became Americanized and moved to the Bronx, or upper Fifth avenue, a new batch of foreigners arrived, and business boomed. With the supply cut off by drastic quota regulations, landlords are thinking of going into the business of printing "To Let" signs.

But the far-sighted see a new era coming. The movement which began at Sutton place, three miles north on the East Side, may spread down townward. And in time there may be fashionable modern apartments where now the shabbiest tenements stand decrepit.

Outside a hospital, west of Broadway, an impeding father kept pacing to and fro, awaiting some word from his wife, about to become a mother.

After what seemed hours, a nurse rushed out and congratulated him.

"It's a fine bouncing girl," she said.

"Thank God for that," replied the man, mopping his brow.

"But I thought you wanted a boy."

"Maybe I did," was the retort, "but not any more. I want no child of mine to go through what I've just been."

Women desiring to see exclusive shops should walk along Fifty-seventh street, near Fifth avenue. I don't know why I've written this, for I probably shall receive letters asking for the prices of this and that—which I dare not give. I do not buy on Fifty-seventh street. I peer into the windows.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Considering his enormous size, Attorney General John Garibaldi Sargent probably is the least conspicuous individual who ever filled an important position in Washington.

Ordinarily the attorney general of the United States is in the limelight to a great deal, whether he likes it or not. If he tries to keep out of it, it simply is turned on him and follows him around.

It bothered Harlan P. Stone, John G.'s predecessor, like sixty. It illuminated Harry Daugherty to a fare-thee-well. By its glare, Mitchell Palmer barely escaped being blown up by a bomb. But "Jawn," as President Coolidge calls him, has the trick of doing a fade-away, with the beam pointing right at him. For a man who misses being a regular circus giant by a mighty narrow margin, it is miraculous almost.

Be it understood, the attorney general takes the leading part in a vast number of the government's most sensational activities. He handles all of Uncle Sam's law business for him—civil and criminal.

He does an immense amount of investigating, and finds out all sorts of perfectly thrilling things. He turns up anti-trust law violations. He digs into oil leases. Occasionally he sends a powerful federal officer to jail. He prosecutes big bootleggers.

Naturally his department is a veritable mine of the rarest gems of information for the press—provided the Washington correspondent can blast them out and give them to the public.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Resolutions for Autumn You have come back from your vacation rested and refreshed. What sin of omission you have committed against your complexion, the chances are that at least your body has profited from your rest. You are ready now to tackle whatever may come with a mental will and the physical strength which ensures success.

Perhaps, even, you have returned with a new outlook on life. Your ambitions have been stimulated, and the year that is coming seems nothing but a short, straight road leading right to success. Rest has done this for you.

You have had a chance to relax and to give your tired brain and your tired body a complete rest, and as a consequence, all the little cells of nerve and muscle have become newly impregnated with youth and vitality.

There is no reason why in a few months this should all have worn away. The law of nature, the law of religion and the law of the working man has given us one day each week in which for a brief period of time, we may make up on our lost sleep, exercise and recreation. If you are wise, you will utilize this day of rest to its full advantage.

Once every two weeks plan to give yourself a facial treatment to take stock in your physical

Many people carry a lunch to eat at noon, and the day's menu gives a balanced luncheon for an adult. I suggest coffee in the thermos bottle to supply the one hot thing, otherwise I should have put milk in it. The proportions are for four people, with the meat loaf large enough to take care of the meat sandwiches on the following day.

Today's Recipes

Beef Loaf—One pound pork, two pounds beef, one large onion, chopped; one cup cracker crumbs, one egg, one teaspoon salt, pepper, one can vegetable soup. To the beef and pork, freshly ground, add all the other ingredients, except one-half can of soup. Mix well, shape in loaf, brown in hot oven for fifteen minutes, your one-half cup water around it, lower fire and finish baking—about one and one-half hours should suffice. When done remove from pan, add the one-half can of soup to remaining broth, and thicken with two tablespoons flour in a cup of milk.

When making this loaf you may add any bits of vegetables you happen to have cooked—tomatoes, carrots, peas, corn, potatoes or lima or other beans. This not only utilizes the leftovers, but adds to the flavor of the loaf.

Beet Greens—Select beets with nice, green tops. Sever from beets, wash well under several waters, cook until tender in the least possible amount of salted water. Dish up and pour over them one-half cup water, one-half cup vinegar, pepper and salt to taste. Dot generously with butter, cut well with large knife and serve.

Salad—Cook yellow string beans in salted water. When tender, drain and place in quart jar, whole and pour over them a mixture of vinegar, water, pepper and salt. Let stand until they absorb enough of this to taste pickled. For your salad, make a generous sized nest of these, fill cavity with sliced cucumber, beets and carrots. Before serving top with oil dressing.

Beef Birds

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Cut round steak into rather small pieces (two by three inches), salt and pepper. Mix equal parts of chopped onion and beef suet together. Put about two tablespoons on each piece of steak and fold together by means of toothpick. Fry until brown, put in casserole, add a small amount of water and bake until done.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

The Children

Can Have Good Teeth.

Mr. and Mrs. Blank both have bad teeth, so they were determined their children would not have that disadvantage and they took every precaution. Began to teach them the use of the toothbrush when they were tiny; took them to the dentist regularly for any little fillings, etc. But alas! It was of no avail. All the children had soft, irregular, easily decaying teeth. "They've inherited our bad teeth," Mr. and Mrs. Blank sadly observed.

Were the Blank children's bad teeth inherited? No, not necessarily. Mr. and Mrs. Blank believed they took all the precautions necessary for them to have good teeth, but they didn't. Mrs. Blank, in the first place, did not have the right pre-natal and post-natal diet so the children's teeth as they were being formed did not have the necessary elements. When the children began their solid foods she allowed them to eat excessive amounts of cereals, breads, desserts and candy. They liked their milk and she had read and heard so much of the importance of milk in childhood that she thought they were getting a good diet. She noticed they caught cold easily and had most all the diseases of childhood but thought it was part of childhood to have them.

The Blank children might have had good teeth had Mrs. Blank had sufficient vegetables and fruit during the pre-natal and nursing periods and had the children had sufficient vegetables and fruit, as well as milk, while growing. It is not sufficient to have the full amount of milk in the child's (or adult's) diet. It must contain a goodly amount of fruits and vegetables with their vitamins and mineral elements, if you are to safeguard the teeth and health. And it must not contain such large amounts of starches and sugars or even of milk, that these foods will not be taken. Aside from crowding out the needed elements, the starches and sugars will cause tooth decay because small particles of them ferment so forming local collections of acids which corrode. It has long been believed that excess starches and sugars would cause tooth decay, and now we have had some research work done that has confirmed it. This work was done by Dr. Louise O. Kappes of the Mayo Foundation, at Rochester. I'll tell you a little something about it:

Two groups of children from the Rochester schools were selected for comparison—25 with perfect or nearly perfect teeth, and 25 with marked dental decay (caries). Their histories disclosed these points:

The first year of both groups did not markedly differ. The greatest difference between the two groups occurred after the age of one year. The majority of these children who had good teeth had liberal amounts of green vegetables and fruits and meat and eggs, besides their milk and the majority of the poor-tooth group had excessive starches and sugars and too little of fruits and vegetables. In most of the cases the correct diet not only made for good teeth, but better health. The children having the right diet had fewer of the infectious diseases.

While the histories showed that in the group of children with good teeth (with the exception of one child) all the parents had good teeth also, and of the poor-tooth group less than half the parents had good teeth—confirming the impression that heredity might be a factor—the Kappes believes that the good teeth in the parents might have meant the correct diet and good care. Her belief was confirmed by the following:

A mother with very poor teeth had a boy with very good teeth. This mother said she had made special efforts to have her boy's teeth good; she had had the correct diet during the pre-natal and nursing periods and had seen that he had the right diet and dental care. So Dr. Kappes believes that if a tendency to poor teeth is inherited, it may be overcome by attention to diet.

You want your children to have good teeth? Aside from frequent dental care, give them a balanced diet. This means a goodly amount of fresh fruits and green vegetables, as faithfully as their milk. We have a list of modern books on the general care and feeding of children which you may have by following column rules.

Living and Loving

Increase In Divorces Shows The New Freedom of Women

A lecturer declared recently that the increase in divorces did not trouble him, for he saw in it only evidence of the new freedom of women. Women used to put up with everything for the sake of a home and the protection of a man's name. Now they can find for themselves and will not put up with abuse. That they may go too far in some instances is natural, but I have faith that things will adjust themselves—men will treat their wives like pals, not like children or chattels, and women will learn to be the good sports and pals in everything that men need to make marriage successful and happy.

A recent letter from an unhappy married woman made me cogitate along this line. Her husband is twice her age, does not love her, or so he says, barely provides food, and they are in every way uncongenial. She knows a man whom she could love and with whom she thinks she could be happy. In the name of common sense, will you tell me why she should stay with the man she does not love and with whom she is miserable when she might be making a happy home with some one else? This is my answer to you, Broken. Don't be afraid of striking out for yourself. I have your husband. You are both doing wrong by staying together when you do not love one another. Get a job—oh, yes, Hurrah! Hurrah!

"I am 18, a girl five feet two, blue eyes, auburn curly hair, 116 pounds, never been in love, in fact, am not permitted to go with boys, and am not in the least bothered. I do go out occasionally, but my older brothers usually accompany my date and me, but that doesn't worry me any. I'm happy and wish all the unhappy people in your column could share my happiness."

"CONTENTED." Thank you for your complimentary little letter, dear. They did at least one person good. I hope no dark clouds will ever hover on your horizon, at least only enough to make life interesting.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A FIGHT BETWEEN A PIRATE AND A KING

"The more she thought about the fiercer Cousin Sally grew."

"Eagle is after one of our nestlings, thinks our baby would make a dainty mouthful for his wife's supper, I suppose! Well, he is very much mistaken. He may rob other birds' nests, but he has got to leave that of the Skuas alone or lose an eye."

"My own brave husband! I knew you would beat him off. Hurrah! Hurrah! There he flies, the cruel robber. He is making for the other side of those rocks. Soon he will be out of sight. Ah! Over he goes and out. Thank goodness we have seen the last of his tail feathers for a while, I hope."

"Sally Skua was right! Cormorant could scarcely believe his own eyes when he saw Eagle sailing not soaring as he usually did, but slowly and with a half-hearted motion of his wings, as if he was dreadfully ashamed of himself for being beaten. Nor did Eagle carry off all of his feathers with him. Long after he had flown out of sight there were floating about in the breeze, silent witnesses to the fact that for once in his life at least the conqueror had been conquered.

"The Gulls were much delighted and gloated over the victory all the way home."

"Little by little the crowd lessened as Gull after Gull left his comrades and flew to his own particular nest upon the rocks, where he was received with open wings and joyful shouts of welcome by his wife and babies. At last there were only Cormorant and one Gull left, sailing alone."

"Well," remarked the Gull, "the time has come when you must finish your journey by yourself, friend. My home is on that ledge that we are just about to come to. Soon I shall be following the plough of some farmer and picking up grubs instead of fish for dinner. I like a change of scenery and diet once in a while, and when I grow weary of the water I make for the land. Goodbye and good luck."

"Waving a friendly farewell to the last of the Gulls, home and again Cormorant was left to his own devices."

Next—"Cormorant Asks Merry of Glitter-Eyes."

Be it understood, the attorney general takes the leading part in a vast number of the government's most sensational activities.

He handles all of Uncle Sam's law business for him—civil and criminal.

He does an immense amount of investigating, and finds out all sorts of perfectly thrilling things. He turns up anti-trust law violations. He digs into oil leases. Occasionally he sends a powerful federal official to jail. He prosecutes big bootleggers.

Naturally his department is a veritable mine of the rarest gems of information for the press—provided the Washington correspondent can blast them out and give them to the public.

How to Achieve Beauty

Resolutions for Autumn

You have come back from your vacation rested and refreshed. What sins of omission you have committed against your complexion, the chances are that at least your body has profited from your rest. You are ready now to tackle whatever may come with a mental will and the physical strength which ensures success.

Perhaps, even, you have returned with a new outlook on life. Your ambitions have been stimulated, and the year that is coming seems nothing but a short, straight road leading right to success. Rest has done this for you.

You have had a chance to relax and to give your tired brain and your tired body a complete rest, and as a consequence, all the little cells of nerve and muscle have become newly impregnated with youth and vitality.

There is no reason why in a few months this should all have worn away. The law of nature the law of religion and the law of the working man has given us one day each week in which for a brief period of time, we may make up on our best sleep, exercise and recreation. If you are wise, you will utilize this day of rest to its full advantage.

Once every two weeks plan to give yourself a facial treatment to take stock in your physical in the journalistic settings which make them show to best advantage.

The reportorial craft has had varying degrees of luck with past attorneys general, but it can hardly be said that the newspaper men ever have drawn an absolute blank until "Jawny's" justice department regime.

If John G. Sargent ever told a correspondent anything more enlightening than that he "didn't know" what the latter was trying to find out, I have failed to see it in print.

By gaging all his subordinates, from his first assistant down to the junior office boy, concerning the slightest detail of their official tasks, and by pleading ignorance insofar as he himself is concerned, of anything and everything, Attorney General Sargent has spread a blanket of secrecy a foot thick over the justice department's goings, from the inconsequential to the most momentous, in the last three and a half years.

The natural inference is that "Jawny" really knows infinitely more than he admits concerning what is going on under his administration.

And yet his appearance of genuine, fatuous inability to answer any imaginable question, relative to subjects upon which it seems impossible that he can be uninformed, is almost too convincing to be doubted.

The sight of Attorney General Sargent in the act of being interviewed—by twenty or thirty correspondents at once—is one not soon to be forgotten.

Behold the scribes!—alert and inquisitive.

Many people carry a lunch to eat at noon, and the day's menu gives a balanced luncheon for an adult. I suggest coffee in the thermos bottle to supply the one hot thing, otherwise I should have put milk in it. The proportions are for four people, with the meat loaf large enough to take care of the meat sandwiches on the following day.

Today's Recipes

Beef Loaf—One pound pork, two pounds beef, one large onion, chopped; one cup cracker crumbs, one egg, one teaspoon salt, pepper, one can vegetable soup. To the beef and pork, freshly ground, add all the other ingredients, except one-half can of soup. Mix well, shape in loaf, brown in hot oven for fifteen minutes, turn one-half cup water around it, lower fire and finish baking—about one and one-half hours should suffice. When done remove from pan, add the one-half can of soup to remaining brown, and thicken with two tablespoons flour in a cup of milk.

When making this loaf you may add any bits of vegetables you happen to have cooked—tomatoes, carrots, peas, corn, potatoes or lima or other beans. This not only utilizes the leftovers, but adds to the flavor of the loaf.

Beet Greens—Select beets with nice, green tops. Sever from beets, wash well through several waters, cook until tender in the least possible amount of salted water. Dish up and pour over them one-half cup water, one-half cup vinegar, pepper and salt to taste. Dot generously with butter, cut well with large knife and serve.

Salad—Cook yellow string beans in salted water. When tender, drain and place in quart jar, whole and pour over them a mixture of vinegar, water, pepper and salt. Let stand until they absorb enough of this to taste pickled. For your salad, make a generous sized nest of these, fill cavity with sliced cucumber, beets and carrots. Before serving top with oil dressing.

Beef Birds

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Cut round steak into rather small pieces (two by three inches), salt and pepper. Mix equal parts of chopped onion and beef suet together. Put about two tablespoons on each piece of steak and fold together by means of toothpick. Fry until brown, put in casserole, add a small amount of water and bake until done.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

The Children

Can Have Good Teeth.

Mr. and Mrs. Blank both have bad teeth, so they were determined their children would not have that disadvantage and they took every precaution. Began to teach them the use of the toothbrush when they were tiny; took them to the dentist regularly for any little fillings, etc. But alas! It was of no avail. All the children had soft, irregular, easily decaying teeth. "They've inherited our bad teeth. You can't get away from heredity," Mr. and Mrs. Blank sadly observed.

Were the Blank children's bad teeth inherited? No, not necessarily. Mr. and Mrs. Blank believed they took all the precautions necessary for them to have good teeth, but they didn't. Mrs. Blank, in the first place, did not have the right pre-natal and post-natal diet so the children's teeth as they were being formed did not have the necessary elements. When the children began their solid foods she allowed them to eat excessive amounts of cereals, breads, desserts and candy. They liked their milk and she had read and heard so much of the importance of milk in childhood that she thought they were getting a good diet. She noticed they caught cold easily and had most all the diseases of childhood but thought it was part of childhood to have them.

The Blank children might have had good teeth had Mrs. Blank had sufficient vegetables and fruit during the pre-natal and nursing periods and had the children had sufficient vegetables and fruit, as well as milk, while growing. It is not sufficient to have the full amount of milk in the child's (or adult's) diet. It must contain a goodly amount of fruits and vegetables with their vitamins and mineral elements, if you are to safeguard the teeth and health. And it must not contain such large amounts of starches and sugars or even of milk, that these foods will not be taken. Aside from crowding out the needed elements, the starches and sugars will cause tooth decay because small particles of them ferment, so forming local collections of acids which corrode. It has long been believed that excess starches and sugars would cause tooth decay, and now we have had some research work done that has confirmed it. This work was done by Dr. Louise O. Kappes of the Mayo Foundation, at Rochester. I'll tell you a little something about it:

Two groups of children from the Rochester schools were selected for comparison—25 with perfect or nearly perfect teeth, and 25 with marked dental decay (caries). Their histories disclosed these points:

The first year of both groups did not markedly differ. The greatest differences between the two groups occurred after the age of one year. The majority of these children who had good teeth had liberal amounts of green vegetables and fruits and meat and eggs, besides the milk and the majority of the poor-tooth group had excessive starches and sugars and too little of fruits and vegetables. In most of the cases the correct diet not only made for good teeth, but better health. The children having the right diet had fewer of the infectious diseases.

While the histories showed that in the group of children with good teeth (with the exception of one child) all the parents had good teeth also, and the poor-tooth group less than half the parents had good teeth—confirming the impression that heredity might be a factor—Dr. Kappes believed that the good teeth in the parents might also have meant the correct diet and good care. Her belief was confirmed by the following:

A mother with very good teeth had a boy with very good teeth. This mother said she had made special efforts to have her boy's teeth good; she had had the correct diet during the pre-natal and nursing periods and had seen that he had the right diet and dental care. So Dr. Kappes believes that if a tendency to poor teeth is inherited, it may be overcome by attention to diet.

You want your children to have good teeth? Aside from frequent dental care, give them a balanced diet. This means a goodly amount of fresh fruits and green vegetables, as faithfully as you can. We have a list of modern books on the general care and feeding of children which you may have by following column rules.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Increase in Divorces Shows The New Freedom of Women

A lecturer declared recently that the increase in divorces did not trouble him, for he saw in it only evidence of the new freedom of women. Women used to put up with everything for the sake of a home and the protection of a man's name. Now they can fend for themselves and will not put up with abuse. That they may go too far in some instances is natural, but I have faith that things will adjust themselves—men will treat their wives like pals, not like children or chattels, and women will learn to be the good sports and pals in everything that men need to make marriage successful and happy.

A recent letter from an unhappy married woman made me cogitate along this line. Her husband is twice her age, does not love her, or so he says, barely provides food, and they are in every way uncongenial. She knows a man whom she could love and with whom she thinks she could be happy. In the name of common sense, will you tell me why she should stay with the man she does not love and with whom she is miserable when she might be making a happy home with some one else? This is my answer to you, Broken. Don't be afraid of striking out for yourself. Leave your husband. You are both doing wrong by staying together when you do not love one another. Get a job—oh, yes, you can if you are not too particular—and finally get your divorce. And I hope you will be happy if you decide eventually to marry the other man when you are free.

This happy little letter came to me in the morning mail. "My Dear Mrs. Lee: Just a few lines to say how much I enjoy your column. Your advice certainly seems sensible, sane and sure, moreover kind and sympathizing. I've no worries or troubles to bring to you, only congratulations and best wishes to you, and good luck to those whose horizon seems to have dark clouds hovering over it."

"I am 18, a girl five feet two, blue eyes, auburn curly hair, 116 pounds, never been in love, in fact, am not permitted to go with boys, and am not in the least bothered. I do go out occasionally, but my older brothers usually accompany my date and me, but that doesn't worry me any. I'm happy and wish all the unhappy people in your column could share my happiness."

"CONTENTED."

Thank you for your compliments, your good wishes and happy little letter, dear. They did at least one person good. I hope the dark clouds will ever hover on your horizon, at least only enough to make life interesting.

Peter's Adventure

A FIGHT BETWEEN A PIRATE AND A KING

The more she thought about Eagle the fiercer Cousin Sally grew.

"Eagle is after one of our nestlings, thinks our baby would make a dainty mouthful for his wife's supper, I suspect. Well, he is very much mistaken. He may rob other birds' nests, but he has got to leave that of the Skuas alone or lose an eye."

"My own brave husband! I knew you would beat him off, Hurrah! Hurrah! There he flies, the cruel robber. He is making for the other side of those rocks. Soon he will be out of sight. Ah! Over he goes and out. Thank goodness we have seen the last of his tail feathers for a while, I hope."

"Sally Skua was right! Cormorant could scarcely believe his own eyes when he saw Eagle saluting not soaring as he usually did, but slowly and with a half-hearted motion of his wings, as if he was dreadfully ashamed of himself for being beaten. Nor did Eagle carry off all of his feathers with him. Long after he had flown out of sight these were floating about in the breeze, silent witnesses to the fact that for once in his life at least the conqueror had been conquered."

"The Gulls were much delighted and gloated over the victory all the way home."

"Little by little the crowd lessened as Gull after Gull left his comrades and flew to his own particular nest upon the rocks, where he was received with open wings and joyful shouts of welcome by his wife and babies. At last there were only Cormorant and one Gull left, sailing alone."

"Well," remarked the Gull, "the time has come when you must finish your journey by yourself, friend. My home is on that ledge that we are just about to come to. Soon I shall be following the plough of some farmer and picking up grubs instead of fish for dinner. I like a change of scenery and diet once in a while, and when I grow weary of the water I make for the land. Goodbye and good luck."

"Waving a friendly farewell the last of the Gulls flew home and again Cormorant was left to his own devices."

Veteran Tackle Declared Eligible At Central

HERMAN SCOTT WILL HELP SUBDUDE PIQUA IN LEAGUE CONTEST

Game Booked For Saturday; Locals Optimistic

XENIA Central High School's hopes of victory in the inaugural Miami Valley League football game with Piqua High here Saturday afternoon have taken on a rosy hue with the announcement that Herman Scott, veteran lineman, who has been ineligible for the first two games this season, will be available to the team once more.

Scott, 175-pound tackle, senior and veteran of several seasons, will add weight and experience to the line.

While any attempt to assume the role of prophet is generally discredited and appears ridiculous, it is believed that Xenia Central has an extraordinarily good chance to win from Piqua Saturday and moreover, will win.

Coach Walter L. "Pinky" Wilson has subjected his charges to long play rehearsals and what not this week and every player on the squad is going about his work in dead earnest.

Piqua Central's football squad includes but three veterans from the 1927 squad, namely, Captain Hilbert, end, and quarterback; Sargeant, end, and Cron, fullback. To date, Piqua has defeated Versailles 32 to 0 and Bradford, 35 to 0.

Coach Wertz, of Piqua, is being forced to experiment with most of his material, which is still pretty green regardless of the size of scores run up on opposing teams.

Here is Piqua's probable starting lineup for the game Saturday: Cron, fullback; Lusk and Yount, halfbacks; Hilbert, quarterback; Sargeant and Lind, ends; Davidson and Hilbert, tackles; Black and McNeal, guards and Ramsey or Sullenbarger at center.

After losing six straight games, the Red Wing Co. bowling team emerged from its slump and retained first place in the Recreation League by a narrow margin as a result of winning the odd game in three from the Lang Transfers.

Three days later the Red Wings scored the third and deciding contest by seventeen pins. Higley was high for the match with 552, followed by Jeffries, of the winners with 551. Box score:

YOUTH EXECUTED

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 10.—Charles Shader, 21, was executed at the Will County Jail today for participation in the prison break at Illinois State Penitentiary two years ago in which Warden Peter Klein was killed.

The trap was sprung at 6:03 a. m. and Shader was pronounced dead a short time later.

Miss Hopper, with some forty years of stage work behind her, knows the tricks of attracting. Among the most important she rates a fresh, lovely wave. She has found the perfect curling fluid to keep your hair alluring regardless of circumstances.

Wave and Shaper, she calls it. A liquid dressing, which is a godsend, especially during the summertime, it not only preserves the wave but gives your hair a soft, fascinating sheen. Try it on your freshly shampooed hair.

Money back if you are not delighted. At all toilet counters, 75 cents.

PIQUA CAPTAIN

One of the three veterans wearing the fiery Red and Blue sweaters this fall for Piqua Central is Captain "Bob" Hilbert, end and quarterback. A smashing wing man and a heady field general, Coach Wertz has been alternating Hilbert at right end and in the backfield in effort to put the right amount of drive in the Piqua aggregation.

Hilbert, along with Sargeant, an end and Cron, fullback, make up the trio of "old-headers" around which the Central High mentor must build the 1928 Indian grid machine.

DURNBAUGH AVERAGE SLIPS; STILL LEADS RESERVE HITTERS

Although a number of Reserve players were fattening their batting averages Sunday during the free-hitting contest with the Dayton All-Stars, Durnbaugh, leading slugger was a notable exception. His five times at bat produced one hit, that a triple, and his batting average suffered to the extent of nine points. His mark of .388, however, still gives him a substantial lead over his nearest opponent. Reserves raised the team batting average to .316, an increase of two points. Batting records follow:

M'KECHNIE'S FAILURE MAY GIVE CARDINALS NEW MANAGER

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—Storm clouds hovered over the head of William B. McKechnie today and baseball fans wondered if another manager of the St. Louis Cardinals was at the end of his string.

Even before the New York Yankees won the fourth straight game from the Cardinals, reports were in circulation here that McKechnie would not make the Red Birds another season. Sam Breadon, president of the club, however, was non-committal on the subject of the Cardinals 1929 leader.

Frank Snyder, former New York Giant and Cardinal catcher, who managed the Houston Texas League club the past season, has been mentioned as McKechnie's possible successor, but Breadon has denied Snyder's selection for the job.

McKechnie may beat Breadon to the draw and resign before he follows in the footsteps of Rogers Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell. McKechnie is not eager to remain in baseball much longer.

"I wouldn't go through another race like the National League race the past season for a million dollars," McKechnie told newspaper men in New York before the world series opened.

Before the fourth game yesterday, McKechnie said he hadn't changed his mind about what he said in New York.

McKechnie was asked if he had a contract to manage the Cardinals in 1929. He answered, "No," walked a few paces and wheeled around as if he had just remembered something said: "withdraw that question."

Branch Rickey was deposited in favor of Rogers Hornsby during the 1925 season. Hornsby led the Cards to the National League pennant and world championship in 1926 and traded away. Bob O'Farrell piloted the Cards to second place in 1927, despite adverse conditions, he, too, was traded.

McKechnie pulled the Cards through one of the most strenuous campaigns in years, and he, too, may go the way of Hornsby and O'Farrell.

If McKechnie has made mistakes in the way he handled the Cards in the world series, the players themselves made more mistakes. McKechnie is, least of all, to blame for the poor showing of the National League champions.

The Cubs scored six runs in the first inning off Connolly, Young Ed Walsh and Grady Adkins. In the fifth they went on another batting spree, drove Adkins from the mound and scored another half dozen runs. Their thirteenth tally was made in the seventh.

The American League Sox scored their only runs in the ninth when the Cubs "kidded" them and allowed them to run all the way from first to home on Hunnefeld's single. Hunnefeld went to second on a fielder's choice and scored on pinch hitter "Bud" Clancy's single.

The Cubs scored six runs in the first inning off Connolly, Young Ed Walsh and Grady Adkins. In the fifth they went on another batting spree, drove Adkins from the mound and scored another half dozen runs. Their thirteenth tally was made in the seventh.

The American League Sox scored their only runs in the ninth when the Cubs "kidded" them and allowed them to run all the way from first to home on Hunnefeld's single. Hunnefeld went to second on a fielder's choice and scored on pinch hitter "Bud" Clancy's single.

YANKEES BROKE OR EQUALLED ONLY THIRTEEN RECORDS DURING SERIES

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—The New York Yankees, poor prematurely pitied cripples that they were, only broke or equalled thirteen world's records in crushing the hapless St. Louis Cardinals in the four games of the 1928 series for the baseball championship.

The following records were established by the Yankees:

They had nine home runs in a world's series, even though it was as short as any on record;

They made five home runs in one game, yesterday's, Ruth getting three and Gehrig and Durst one apiece;

They won their second consecutive world's championship in four straight games;

They ran their string of consecutive world's series victories to eight;

They hit two homers in one inning, in both the first and last games.

They went through two consecutive world series using only one pitcher to a game.

WEIRD EXHIBITION MAKES CUBS CHAMPS OVER CHICAGO SOX

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—William Wrigley's National League Cubs are the baseball champions of Chicago.

Smothering three White Sox pitchers with sixteen hits for a total of twenty-one bases, the Cubs walked away with the seventh and deciding game of the city series yesterday. The final score was 13 to 2.

Yesterday's game was a weak, pitiful close to a series that had provided many thrills during the first six games. George Connolly, who had not started a game in months, was chosen by Manager Lena Blackburn to take the mound for the Sox at the beginning of the first inning. The Cubs had convinced both Connolly and Blackburn that George never should have started a ball game.

The Cubs scored six runs in the first inning off Connolly, Young Ed Walsh and Grady Adkins. In the fifth they went on another batting spree, drove Adkins from the mound and scored another half dozen runs. Their thirteenth tally was made in the seventh.

Veteran Tackle Declared Eligible At Central

HERMAN SCOTT WILL HELP SUBDUDE PIQUA IN LEAGUE CONTEST

Game Booked For Saturday; Locals Optimistic

XENIA Central High School's hopes of victory in the inaugural Miami Valley League football game with Piqua Saturday afternoon have taken on a rosier hue with the announcement that Herman Scott, veteran lineman, who has been ineligible for the first two games this season, will be available to the team once more.

Scott, 175-pound tackle, senior and veteran of several seasons, will add weight and experience to the line.

While any attempt to assume the role of prophet is generally discredited and appears ridiculous, it is believed that Xenia Central has an extraordinarily good chance to win from Piqua Saturday and moreover, will win.

Coach Walter L. "Pinky" Wilson has subjected his charges to long play rehearsals and what not this week and every player on the squad is going about his work in dead earnest.

Piqua Central's football squad includes but three veterans from the 1927 squad, namely, Captain Hilbert, end and quarterback; Sargeant, end, and Cron, fullback.

To date, Piqua has defeated Versailles 32 to 0 and Bradford, 35 to 0.

PIQUA CAPTAIN

One of the three veterans wearing the fiery Red and Blue sweaters this fall for Piqua Central is Captain "Bob" Hilbert, end and quarterback. A smashing wing man and a heady field general, Coach Wertz has been alternating Hilbert at right end and in the backfield in effort to put the right amount of drive in the Piqua aggregation.

Hilbert, along with Sargeant, an end and Cron, fullback, make up the trio of "old heads" around which the Central High mentor must build the 1928 Indian grid machine.

Ritticisms

BY BILL RITT

A lot of minor league ball players, wish they'd got hit by the draft. Then want to catch big league pneumonia.

The boys stand around in their bare records and hope they sneeze themselves into a job with the Yanks.

The draft was invented to give a lot of bush leaguers a chance to see big league games from the bench.

Their life consists of warming up before the game and cooling off in the dugout.

One big leaguer rode the bench for five years. He also holds a world series record. He snored through three of them.

When they finally canned him he found he couldn't walk. His feet had gone into retirement.

So he got a job as a street car motorman and now he makes a run every day.

DURNBAUGH AVERAGE SLIPS; STILL LEADS RESERVE HITTERS

Although a number of Reserve players were fattening their batting averages Sunday during the free-hitting contest with the Dayton All-Stars, Durnbaugh, leading slugger was a notable exception. His five times at bat produced one hit, that a triple, and his batting average suffered to the extent of nine points. His mark of .388, however, still gives him a substantial lead over his nearest opponent. Reserves ailed the team batting average to .316, an increase of two points. Batting records follow:

M'KECHNIE'S FAILURE MAY GIVE CARDINALS NEW MANAGER

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—Storm clouds hovered over the head of William B. McKechnie today and baseball fans wondered if another manager of the St. Louis Cardinals was at the end of his string.

Even before the New York Yankees won the fourth straight game from the Cardinals, reports were in circulation here that McKechnie would not manage the Red Birds another season.

Breadon, president of the club, however, was non-committal on the subject of the Cardinals 1929 leader.

Frank Snyder, former New York Giant and Cardinal catcher, who managed the Houston Texas League club the past season, has been mentioned as McKechnie's possible successor, but Breadon has denied Snyder's selection for the job.

McKechnie may beat Breadon to the draw and resign before he follows in the footsteps of Rogers Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell. McKechnie is not eager to remain in baseball much longer.

"I wouldn't go through another race like the National League race the past season for a million dollars," McKechnie told newspaper men in New York before the world series opened.

Before the fourth game yesterday, McKechnie said he hadn't changed his mind about what he said in New York.

McKechnie was asked if he had a contract to manage the Cardinals in 1929. He answered, "No," walked a few paces and wheeled around as if he had just remembered something said: "withdraw that question."

Branch Rickey was deposited in favor of Rogers Hornsby during the 1925 season. Hornsby led the

They went through two consecutive world series using only one pitcher to a game.

They forced the opposing club to use more than one pitcher in every game of the two series.

Lou Gehrig set a new record for runs driven in—nine.

Babe Ruth compiled a batting average of .625 for the series.

The following records were equalled:

Miller Huggins has won three world's championships now, the same number as John McGraw and Connie Mack.

Babe Ruth once more hit three homers in one series game.

Waite Hoyt increased his world series victories to six, a mark once set by Chief Bender of the Athletics.

Lou Gehrig equalled Babe Ruth's record of four homers in a single series.

The records of the Xenia Fire Department show that already the number of fires in the year 1928 has exceeded any other year on record and there are still many weeks before the end of the year. With such a record at hand the appeal of the Fire Chief for united assistance in a campaign of fire prevention should meet with earnest co-operation on the part of every resident of the city. The fire losses for the year, to date, amount to more than 145,000 dollars. The largest loss in any one fire was sustained in the Xenia Hatcheries fire, at which time the Xenia Hatcheries Company had a loss of $48,000 and the Eavey Wholesale Company suffered a loss of $27,300 when its storehouse burned. The largest single loss was the Schmidt Grocery fire when the loss of building and contents amounted to $50,000. The largest private residence loss was at the home of Leon Spahr, where the loss amounted to $5,000. A loss of $7,000 at the Lampert Green Houses, on North Detroit St., just outside the corporation, is not included in the total of fire losses for the city.

Fire Chief Hanifan urges a general clean up of all premises, the disposal of all rubbish and a careful inspection of everything about the property, including roofs, chimneys, flues, furnace pipes, and all electric wirings and connections of all kinds. Proper vigilance observed by all can prevent a repetition of the present year's fire record and can greatly reduce the fire losses.

HOOVER-COOPER CLUB FORMED HERE; FRED FLYNN PRESIDENT

Organization of a "Greene County Hoover-Cooper Club" was effected at an enthusiastic joint meeting of the combined Greene County Republican Central and Executive Committees and the Republican Service League and its auxiliary and the state organization of Republican women, attended by more than 100 Republican workers in the assembly room of the Court House Tuesday night.

Permanent organization was effected by the election of Frederick Flynn, president, Miss Allegra Hawes, secretary, and Miss Helen Dadds, treasurer.

Judge John G. Belknap, Steubenville, O., connected with state Republican headquarters, delivered the principal address of the evening in support of the Republican ticket from top to bottom.

The speaker also gave a brief outline of the personal records of each of the Republican candidates on the national and state tickets, urging that they be supported at the polls November 6.

Dr. W. R. McChesney, president of Cedarville College, also urged loyal support of the Republican candidates. He reviewed the history of the Republican party and its achievements.

State Senator L. T. Marshall, chairman of the county executive committee, presided at the meeting and outlined the plans for the big Republican Seventh Congressional District rally at Clifton October 26.

The president of the club appointed leaders for each of the forty-eight precincts in Greene County, a man and woman for each precinct, outlined the method of organization which will be followed and made recommendations for methods of getting out the vote on election day.

ANOTHER VICTORY! NEW HEALTH COMES THROUGH KONJOLA

Stomach Trouble and Kidney Pains Are Quickly Ended by This New Remedy

This celebrated Konjola medicine helps Nature restore the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy normal action. Most of the common disorders of the important functionary organs have been conquered by this new compound. The people of Xenia are strongly endorsing it. Over a hundred testimonials have been received within a few short weeks, all from men and women in this vicinity and the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, is kept busy each day explaining this remarkable remedy to local people. One of the latest endorsements came from Mrs. Mary Gooding, Stetson Road, this city, who made the following statement:

"I want to endorse such a wonderful medicine as your Konjola," said Mrs. Gooding, "it stopped my stomach and kidney trouble when all else failed."

"I was in a general rundown condition and my stomach was the worst of all. After nearly every meal gas would rise up into my chest and throat cutting off my wind and virtually choking me. I bought everything I could, to help relieve this awful ailment but I could never find anything that would do me the slightest bit of good. A hot, sour, bitter liquid would then come up into my mouth burning like fire and the only relief I could get from it would be soda and even then the relief would only be temporary. My heart would flutter and palpitate so much that at times I thought I had heart trouble. My kidneys were in a frightful condition and the pains caused by them were untold. My feet and ankles would swell and the pains across the small of my back were terrific. At night I couldn't sleep well but had to rise several times due to bladder weakness. The following morning when I got up I felt worn out and I didn't feel like doing anything. These many ailments were sapping my weight and strength so much that soon I was just a mere semblance of my former self."

"This was my condition before I found Konjola, and there were times when I would have been thankful if something would have happened to end it all. My husband had gotten such a wonderful relief by taking Konjola that I thought I would try it too and see if it wouldn't help me. I commenced taking it and before the first bottle was gone I could see a vast improvement coming over my whole system in general. I continued with this medicine until I had completed a full treatment. Now, my stomach trouble is over. I can sit down and eat anything that is placed before me without suffering the least bit of after eating pains. My kidneys are well and strong again, and when I go to bed I can sleep right on through the night without ever having to get up. I honestly feel one hundred per cent improved and I owe all my good health to Konjola."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free sample given.

Ninety-six appointments of precinct leaders were made, including forty-eight men and a similar number of women. These leaders, as members of the club, will work for the Republican ticket in their own precincts and will help get out the vote.

The meeting was attended by representatives from every voting precinct in the county. Literature and campaign souvenirs were also distributed.

Following are the names of the men and women leaders appointed for each of the forty-eight voting precincts:

PICTORIAL LIFE OF HERBERT HOOVER

No. 8

By Satterfield

1. After college, Hoover studied the practical side of mining with pick and shovel in Nevada.

2. Promoted to be a field engineer, he made good at a variety of jobs in the sage brush.

3. He was sent to Australia to organize a group of mines there along American lines.

4. While at his desk in Australia there came a call to China. This appealed to Hoover's imagination.

XENIA HOME-COMING

I am in receipt of several letters from relatives who attended the home-coming celebration in August last, apprising me of certain delightful arrangements provided by your home-coming committee for my entertainment, among others. Unfortunately, and to my disappointment, I was confined to my bed for ten weeks covering the memorable dates, suffering from a dislocated vertebra, the result of an accident, and was unable to attend the epoch-making event.

Lying helpless upon my bed, I had outlined the address I was expected to deliver, and to my chagrin, nobody heard.

The following was to have been one of my contributions of greeting to the home-comers through the medium of your excellent newspaper. Like a pigeon released from a cage far away The old-timers hasten to Xenia today.

The pigeon returns to his early home of old, the oldtimer back where he cast his first vote.

We alight on the Summit of Mount Ararat Where the Ark of the Covenant always has sat; At least the old station deserves such a name, As it stands where erected, exactly the same.

The residents gather in friendly array To welcome the pilgrims from lands far away; With smiles and with laughter, with tears and embraces, They look once again into each other's faces.

Here's Jacob and Jasper, with Reuben and John All dressed in their best and their long whiskers gone, Rebecca, Tabitha, Samantha and Jane With all their posterity, home

EARTH TREMORS ARE RECORDED IN OHIO

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 9.—Earth tremors, apparently centering in Mexico, were recorded on the seismograph at John Carroll University here during the night. Father Frederick Odenbach, university seismologist, estimated the tremblers at 4,000 miles distant. United Press dispatches from Mexico City during the night said shocks were felt generally and that thousands of persons abandoned their homes and fled in panic from theaters and hotels. Little damage was reported.

The Little Yellow House

By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. © 1928

The little yellow house never showed its true dinginess because Mrs. Milburn refused to let anyone see it. Her love transformed it to a shining palace where sacrificing devotion made everything out of nothing. Emmy, the only daughter, wanted to lift herself from the sordidness of the little street she lived in, to the heights where she felt she properly belonged. After a party given by her rich cousin, Marianna, she resolved to better herself some day. Meantime she took a business course, paid for by Grandmother. Pentland, and snubbed, as well as she could, Robb, the boy down the street, who worked in a mill, and who represented the life she determined never to sink into. One day Emmy met once more the man who looked like Robb. She remembered their first meeting at the ice skating rink. He had taken her home. Her mother had said, "Never make yourself even a little cheap and common, Emmy."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

Sitting there in the warmth and brightness, sipping clam bouillon from a thick white cup, Emmy listened to what he had to say to her. "You remember the day I saw you at the rink—the day your cousin left you?" he began, and Emmy nodded.

"Well, you remember that when I took you home that night you wouldn't tell me your name or make a date with me?" Emmy nodded her head again. Her deep gray eyes were fixed upon his face intently, and she had set her steaming bouillon down on the counter before her.

"The next day was Thanksgiving and I'd been invited to a girl's house for dinner," the man went on with his story. "But I called her up and told her I couldn't come. I went out to the rink instead, hoping that maybe you'd be there again."

Emmy shook her head. She had been at home all Thanksgiving afternoon. That had been the day when Perry had brought Lovey to the house for his parents' blessing. "You weren't there, but your cousin, Miss Pentland, was. We've been seeing each other almost every day since," he finished lamely. "I drove as far as her house with her that night, and then footed it back for my own car. I was keen as mustard about her right from the start."

"Were you introduced to her or did you just talk to her the way you talked to me?" Emmy said. "I just talked to her and helped her on with her skates." He was perfectly frank about the manner of their meeting.

"Did you tell her your own name or did you say you were 'Jim Spaulding'?" "I told her my own name—Jim Baldwin—of course." "I don't understand this at all," said Emmy shaking her head with her live-gold hair shining under her soaked hat. "You scratch an acquaintance with a cousin of mine and tell her your own name. Then why did you tell me a false one—a made-up one?"

Jim Baldwin seemed to think this over for a minute. He was embarrassed, and he ran his hand over his head as if he were trying to rub some plausible explanation from his brains. "Well," he said finally with a laugh, "you see I didn't know what kind of a girl you were. . . . You didn't know me from Adam, but you skated with me and let me pick you up and drive you home. . . . He struggled visibly for more tactful words to explain his point of view."

"But you didn't know what kind of girl my cousin was, either. And you didn't lie to her about your name. You didn't sail under false colors with her," said Emmy bluntly.

The man gave his short embarrassed laugh again. He was plainly uncomfortable. He began to stoke his head again.

"I told you I took her home that first day—that is, I drove home with her in her car," he answered. "And when I saw where she lived—and found out that she knows a lot of people that I know—why, naturally—"

"You told her your right name?" Emmy finished his halting sentence for him. "I see. . . . And now you're afraid that I'll tell her that I knew you as Jim Spaulding and that you met me just as you met her. You're afraid she'll get the impression that you're the kind of man who goes around flirting with girls in public places?"

Her voice was so soft and her eyes so calm and candid that young Mr. Baldwin did not see how angry she was. He thought that she understood him and his way of looking at the whole affair.

"Great night for a shipwreck, Mother, eh what?"

"That's it. You've got the idea," he said. "I can see that I've wrangled things up pretty well." He stopped and turned his head to watch Emmy as she left him and walked out of the drug store between the counters heaped high with powder and soap and magazines and chest protectors.

She opened the door and the rain took her. It seemed to close around her like quiet walls and she was thankful for it. It sang on the puddles as she started home. She walked the four miles to Flower Street, and all the way there something her mother once had said to her kept coming back to beat against her brain:

"Don't ever make yourself even a little cheap and common, Emmy. Remember that when men are babies they start crying for the moon, and they keep on wanting it all their lives. The moon—out of reach."

It had not meant much to Emmy when she said it to her. But now she understood exactly what she had meant. If she had been "the moon out of reach" she never would have had her feelings trampled upon the way Jim Baldwin had just trampled upon them. She never would have spoken to him in the first place. If she had not made herself cheap and common by riding home with him that November day, this would never have happened to her.

"He got the wrong impression of me first at the rink," thought Emmy, flying along through the winter rain like a lost redbird in her scarlet oilskin "slicker." "And then when I jumped into his car as if it were nothing to me to ride with strangers, and he brought me to Flower Street and saw the awful place where I lived, he just made up his mind that he didn't want to have a real friendship with me."

She remembered how he had gone to the rink calmly expecting her to come there to carry on their flirtation, and he had met Marianna instead.

"I ought to go straight to Marianna and tell her the kind of cad he is!" Emmy said hotly to herself. But, after all, what was the use of stirring up trouble? And anyway, Marianna was certainly more than able to look after herself, especially where men were concerned. Better to be silent and lock her humiliation in her own heart.

Flower Street was black with rain and darkness that night. The downpour of days seemed to have washed all kinds of stale and woolly odors out of the mud and the dead leaves in the gutters. In spite of herself Emmy found herself seeing the place as it must have looked a month before to the critical and snobbish eyes of Jim Baldwin on the night when he had brought her home.

"Well, in another month I'll be out of it anyway," she told herself. "If I have any luck at all in landing a job!" Through the gloom and the rain she could make out a faint glimmer of white ahead of her. As she came nearer to the house she saw that it was her mother's white apron. She was standing—a small slight shadow—against the shifting shadows of the night, at the top of the porch steps.

And all at once a half-forgotten memory came into Emmy's mind of another time when she had come up this street, feeling as hurt and shamed as she felt now. It had happened years and years before when she was six years old. She had fallen in the school yard during a hilarious game of pom-pom-pull-away, and she had skinned her knee. That wouldn't have been so bad, but some of her playmates had laughed at the way she had tumbled into the mud. And Emmy, so richly sensitive as she always had been had come rushing home. She could still remember how her mother had been standing on the top step of the porch when she rounded the corner, and how at the sight of her white apron and her arms and her gentle eyes, she had burst into loud and childish weeping. She could remember, as if it were yesterday, how Mrs. Milburn had stroked her hair and murmured, "Yes, yes, my pet, I know—as if she really had known just what had happened. As if she had understood in some vague motherly way and had come out to wait for her."

It seemed to Emmy now that it would be the deepest relief to rush to her, as she had rushed then with her troubles and to cry on her small gingham shoulder because she was hurt and ashamed now, just as she had been on that other day so long ago. But instead of that she shook herself and called out through the rain: "Great night for a shipwreck, Mother, eh what?"

She wasn't six years old any more. She must settle these things for herself.

went soaring out against the clear blue sky of another perfect afternoon, and Ruth had broken up another ball game.

Little Willie Sherdel, once more the victim of irresistible Yankee bats, tried to win an argument and lost his chance to win the game. That was the story of the fourth game, in a nut-shell.

Out here in St. Louis they still are protesting bitterly that Sherdel's third pitch to Ruth in the fatal seventh inning to count. The Cardinals' plucky little southpaw had floated over two perfect strikes on the Babe, with one out and the National League champions hugging a one-run lead.

Sobering what he thought was a chance to slip a third strike past Ruth, Sherdel shot back Smith's return without allowing sufficient time to elapse according to American League rules. The ball may or may not have been another perfect strike, but Piffman refused to allow the pitch to get into the record, calling the loudest and most picturesque arguments that ever interrupted a world series game ensued. Sherdel put everything he had into the argument, and lost. When he had to go back and pitch he was lost, and the Yankees knuckled him out of the box before Bill McKeechle could say "Alexander."

It was a sorry substitute for the Alexander of old who came sauntering from the bull pen to relieve Sherdel.

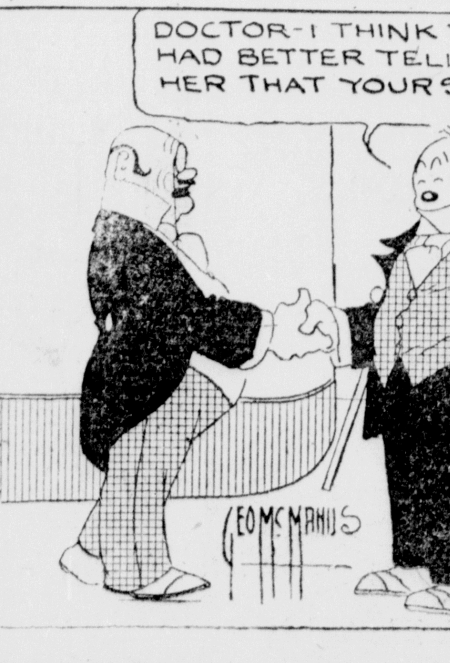

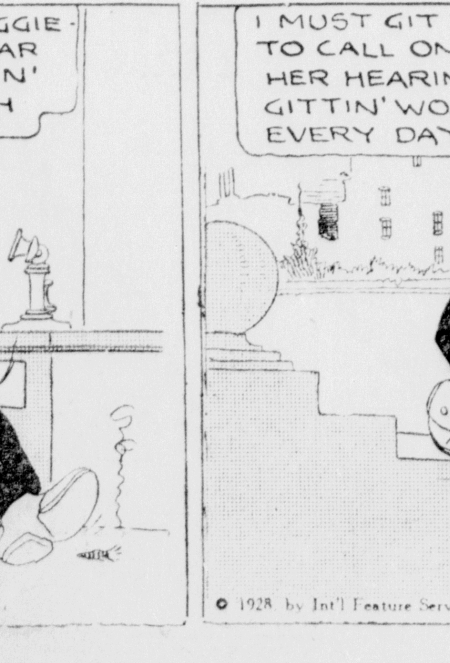

The fact of the matter is that old "Pete," once called "The Great," is just about through with big league baseball. So are Rabbit Maranville. So are several other Cardinals. The team which got out in front of the frantic National League pennant chase and stayed there is no ball club for any fan's money today, despite what it did during the regular season.

Alex finished the game, and the Yankees finished Alex. Babe Ruth brought his total of homers for the afternoon to three with another long drive over into Grand Avenue.

To top off his day's work, Ruth made an amazing running one-hand catch of Frankie Frisch's foul drive, a sharply hit ball.

The picture one carried away from the game as the fans poured into the field and eddied in tumultuous waves across the diamond, was one of the Babe, still springing down past the third base box holding aloft the ball and roaring with laughter.

Probably no other human being has ever induced so many great governments to make so many concessions to his purposes in such a serious international crisis. All the while Hoover had no force behind him except the force of public opinion in a righteous cause. We need a man like that for President.

EARTH TREMORS ARE RECORDED IN OHIO

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 9.—Earth tremors, apparently centering in Mexico, were recorded on the seismograph at John Carroll University here during the night.

Father Frederick Odenbach, university seismologist, estimated the tremors at 4,000 miles distant.

United Press dispatches from Mexico City during the night said shocks were felt generally and that thousands of persons abandoned their homes and fled in panic from theaters and hotels.

Little damage was reported.

The Little Yellow House

By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. © 1928

The little yellow house never showed its true dinginess because Mrs. Milburn refused to let anyone see it. Her love transformed it to a shining palace where sacrificing devotion made everything out of nothing. Emmy, the only daughter, wanted to lift herself from the sordidness of the little street she lived in, to the heights where she felt she properly belonged. After a party given by her rich cousin, Marianna, she resolved to better herself some day. Meantime she took a business course, paid for by Grandmother. Pentland, and snubbed, as well as she could, Robb, the boy down the street, who worked in a mill, and who represented the four miles to Flower Street, and all the way there some thing her mother once had said to her kept coming back to beat against her brain.

"Don't ever make yourself even a little cheap and common, Emmy. Remember that when men are babies they start crying for the moon, and they keep on wanting it all their lives. The moon—out of reach."

It had not meant much to Emmy when she said it to her. But now she understood exactly what she had meant. If she had been "the moon out of reach," she never would have had her feelings trampled upon the way Jim Baldwin had just trampled upon them. She never would have spoken to him in the first place. If she had not made herself cheap and common by riding home with him that November day, this would never have happened to her.

"He got the wrong impression of me first at the rink," thought Emmy, flying along through the winter rain like a lost redbird in her scarlet oldskin "sleeker." "And then when I jumped into his car as if it were nothing to me to ride with strangers, and he brought me to Flower Street and saw the awful place where I lived, he just made up his mind that he didn't want to have a real friendship with me." She went on flustering it all out. He decided I was the kind of girl who wouldn't expect to know his right name—the kind who'd go to meet him in public places—

She remembered how he had gone to the rink calmly expecting her to come there to carry on their flirtation, and he had met Marianna instead.

"I ought to go straight to Marianna and tell her the kind of cad he is!" Emmy said hotly to herself.

But, after all, what was the use of stirring up trouble? And anyway, Marianna was certainly more than able to look after herself, especially where men were concerned. Better to be silent and lock her humiliation in her own heart.

Flower Street was black with rain and darkness that night. The downpour of days seemed to have washed all kinds of stale and woolly odours out of the mud and the dead leaves in the gutters.

In spite of herself Emmy found herself seeing the place as it must have looked a month before to the critical and snobbish eyes of Jim Baldwin on the night when he had brought her home.

"Well, in another month I'll be out of it anyway," she told herself. "If I have any luck at all in landing a job."

Through the gloom and the rain she could make out a faint glimmer of white ahead of her. As she came nearer to the house she saw that it was her mother's white apron. She was standing—a small slight shadow—against the shifting shadows of the night, at the top of the porch steps.

And all at once a half-forgotten memory came into Emmy's mind of another time when she had come up this street, feeling as hurt and shamed as she felt now.

It had happened years and years before when she was six years old. She had fallen in the school yard during a hilarious game of pomp-pull-away, and she had skinned her knee. That wouldn't have been so bad, but some of her playmates had laughed at the way she had tumbled into the mud. And Emmy, foolishly sensitive as she always had been had come rushing home.

She could still remember how her

"Great night for a shipwreck, Mother, eh what?"

"That" sit. You've got the idea. "I can see that I've wrangled things up pretty well." He stopped and turned his head to watch Emmy as she left him and walked out of the drug store between the counters heaped high with powder and soap and magazines and chest protectors.

She opened the door and the rain took her. It seemed to close around her like quiet walls and she was thankful for it. It sang on the puddles as she started home. She walked the four miles to Flower Street, and all the way there something her mother once had said to her kept coming back to beat against her brain.

"Don't ever make yourself even a little cheap and common, Emmy. Remember that when men are babies they start crying for the moon, and they keep on wanting it all their lives. The moon—out of reach."

went soaring out against the clear blue sky of another perfect afternoon, and Ruth had broken up another ball game.

Little Willie Sherdel, once more the victim of irresistible Yankee bats, tried to win an argument and lost his chance to win the game. That was the story of the fourth game, in a nutshell.

Out here in St. Louis they still are protesting bitterly that Sherdel's wild pitch to Ruth in the fatal seventh inning to count. The Cardinals' plucky little southpaw, had floated over two perfect strikes on the Babe, with one out and the National League champions hugging a one run lead.

Seems what he thought was a chance to slip a third strike past Ruth. Sherdel shot back Smith's return without allowing sufficient time to elapse according to American League rules. The ball may or may not have been another perfect strike, but Pfrman refused to allow the pitch to get into the record, calling time.

One of the loudest and most picturesque arguments that ever interrupted a world series game ensued. Sherdel put everything he had into the argument, and lost. When he had to go back and pitch, he was lost, and the Yankees knocked him out of the box before Bill McKeechle could say "Alexander."

It was a sorry substitute for the Alexander of old who came sauntering from the bull pen to relieve Sherdel.

The fact of the matter is that old "Pete," once called "The Great," is just about through with big league baseball. So is Rabbit Maranville. So are several other Cardinals. The team which got out in front of a frantic National League pennant chase and stayed there is no ball club for any fan's money today, despite what it did during the regular season.

Alex finished the game, and the Yankees finished Alex. Babe Ruth brought his total of homers for the afternoon to three with another long drive over into Grand Avenue.

To top off his day's work, Ruth made an amazing running one-hand catch of Frankie Frisch's foul drive, a sharply hit ball.

The picture one carried away from the game as the fans poured into the field and eddied in tumultuous waves across the diamond, was one of the Babe, still springing down past the third base box holding aloft the ball and roaring with laughter.

The Theater

It happened just as everyone predicted it would and Hollywood still is buzzing about the result of casting Jetta Goudal and Lupe Velez in the same picture.

D. W. Griffith was the director who tried the experiment and while he claims "The Love Song" was benefited by their clashes in temperament he admits the situation was "a trifle embarrassing at times."

These times, it would seem, were when Miss Velez took to storming about the lot threatening to scratch Miss Goudal's eyes out and when Miss Goudal, head erect, swept from such scenes to stop the camera grinding for that day.

When it was first announced that Miss Goudal and Miss Velez were to play leads in the same picture for Griffith, the screen colony laughed and then forecast the inevitable.

Griffith was known as one of the best directors in the business for handling temperamental stars but it appeared he had taken a pretty large hit with this pair.

Miss Goudal's name is synonymous with temperance in the colony and Miss Velez, frequently substituted for violent and passionate outbreaks.

They started severely enough, posing for pictures together and offering their best smiles, but it was just like a prize fight—after the pictures were taken and preliminaries finished—the big fight was on.

The beginning of the first clash is rather vague but it seems Miss Goudal had a suggestion to help Miss Velez' action and it seems Miss Velez didn't think she needed any suggestions.

In any event the suggestion ended that day's work for it took a long time to quiet Lupe and when that was done Jetta had disappeared.

Not once but three times during the screening of the film, Griffith went to get a drink of water while Miss Velez raged and Miss Goudal tilted her nose and walked from the set.

Griffith says "The Love Song" will be one of his greatest pictures. In addition to her reputation for temperamental displays, which demanded so many close-ups of a picture, Miss Goudal is known as a "mystery woman" in Hollywood. Paradoxical as it may seem, she is one of the least known and yet one of the best known of the film players.

Outside of the fact that she is of French and Dutch parentage and that she has disrupted the filming of many sequences Hollywood knows nothing about her.

She shuns society and what she does after working hours is nobody's business, she says.

ALONZO GLASS DIES TUESDAY EVENING; PROMINENT FARMER

Alonzo Glass, 61, died at his home on the Jeffersonville Pike, four miles east of Jamestown, Tuesday evening at 5:20 o'clock. Complication of diseases, following failing health of two months, caused his death.

Mr. Glass was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Glass and was born on the Patton and Moorman farm, south of Jamestown. He moved to his present home when six years old and has lived there since.

He married Miss Elda Iva Robinson, of Washington, C. H., in 1893, who preceded him in death several years.

He was a member of the Church of Christ of Pleasant View. He was a prominent farmer and was identified with the Jamestown Grange and Farm Bureau.

Surviving are seven children: Mrs. Oscar Moon and Leonard Glass, Yellow Springs; Mrs. Alfred Webb, Russell and Earl Glass and Mrs. Leonard Mangan, all of Jamestown; and Lawrence Glass, at home. His mother, Mrs. James A. Glass, Jamestown, and three brothers, Andrew and Harry of Springfield and Oscar Glass, near Jamestown, also survive.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 o'clock at the home in charge of the Rev. H. L. Snyder, with burial in Jamestown Cemetery.

MRS. HOWARD CLARK DIES IN JAMESTOWN

Mrs. Effie Clark, 45, wife of Howard Clark, Jamestown, died at her home at that place, Wednesday morning at 7:15 o'clock. She had been ill several months, but death occurred suddenly from a complication of diseases.

Surviving are Mrs. Clark's husband, and one son, Norman, Dayton, and one grandson. The deceased was born near Gunneysville, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bowermaster.

One sister and three brothers, Mrs. Ed Suttle, Detroit; and Clarence Bowermaster, St. Louis; Homer Bowermaster, Dayton; David Bowermaster, Chicago, also survive.

Funeral services have not been arranged.

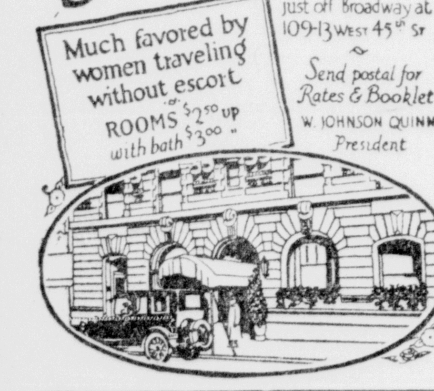

CHURCH WILL HOLD RALLY DAY SUNDAY

"Rally Day" services will be held at the Eleazer M. E. Church, south of Xenia, Sunday, October 14. A program by the children of the Sunday School and special music will feature the morning services, which start at 10 o'clock. Dinner will be served in the basement of the church at noon. The afternoon services will begin at 2 o'clock, at which time the Rev. G. C. Polz, Jeffersonville, former pastor of the Eleazer Church, will make an address.

All friends of the church are invited. Those attending the dinner are to bring a covered dish and sandwiches.

Have You Constant Backache?

A Persistent Backache Often
Warns of Sluggish Kidneys.

EVERY day find you tired and achy? Suffer nagging, backache, drowsy headaches and dizzy spells?
Are kidney secretions too frequent,
scanty or burning?

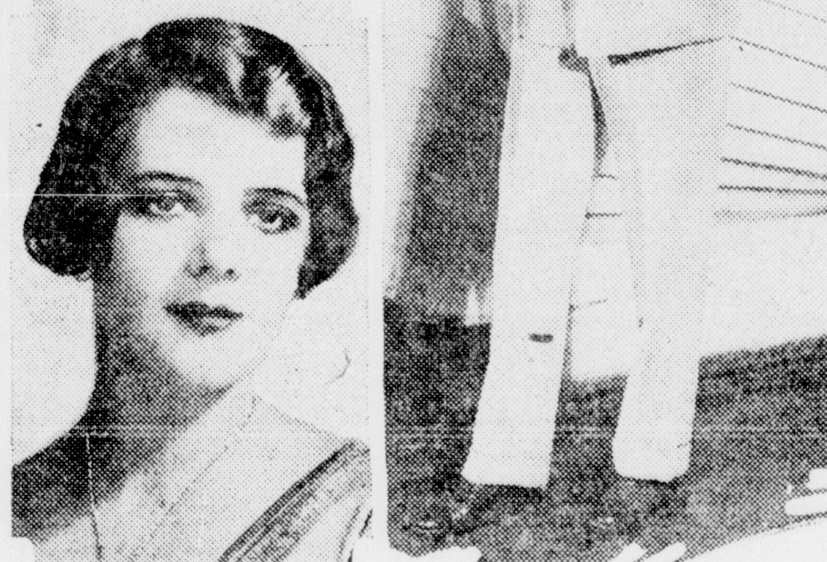

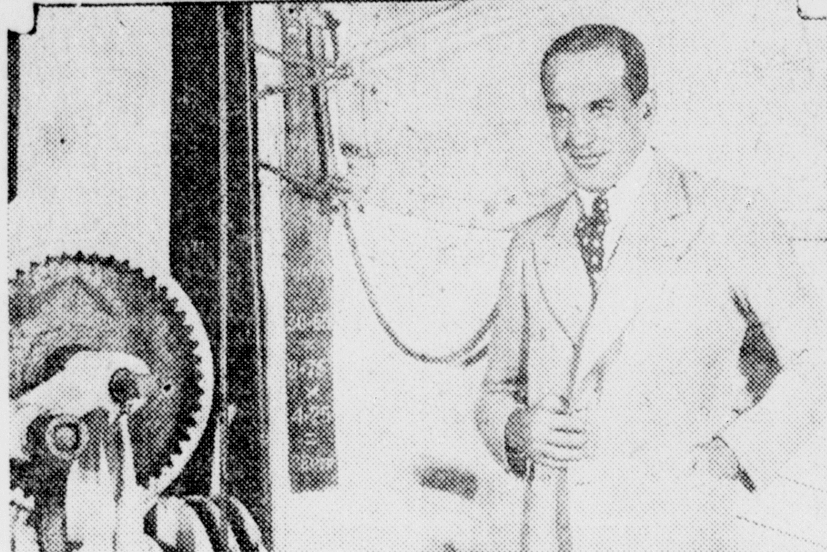

This often indicates sluggish kidneys
and shouldn't be neglected. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increase the activity of the kidneys and thus aid them in carrying off waste impurities. Endorsed by users everywhere.

50,000 Users Endorse Doan's:

Mrs. L. De Anda, 2824 Darwin Ave.,
Los Angeles, Cal., says: "My kidneys didn't act right and my back was awfully lame and weak. I felt tired, had dizzy spells and suffered severely from pains in my back that kept me from doing much around the house. One box of Doan's Pills rid me of the trouble and I haven't been bothered since."

MISSION MEETING

The Missionary Society of the Church of Christ met in the church
parlors Wednesday afternoon, Oct.
10. Mrs. Jennie Buckles, president, presided during the business session and also conducted the devotional services assisted by Mrs. H. S.
Snyder. Mrs. Braden Smith led the program for the afternoon, subject "The Widow's Mite" or "A Study in Stewardship." Very interesting talks on the subject were given by a number of ladies.
Special music was given during the meeting.

Rev. H. S. Snyder, of the Church of Christ, will begin a series of meetings on Sunday morning, October 14. In the evening, the regular union meeting of the different churches will be held at that church.

The young people of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church enjoyed a hayride, Wednesday evening, going to Rosemoor farm,
"good eats" of wieners, etc., were enjoyed.

GRANGE MEETS

The Jamestown Grange held its regular meeting Thursday evening at the Grange Hall. A splendid program was presented by the lecturer, Mrs. B. B. Stackhouse. After the business session the program was opened by all joining in singing "America." Master Kenneth
Weller, reading: "What My Wife Wore for Her Wedding Dress,"
was told by Messrs. Ed Ballard, O.
D. Clark and Fred Lewis. A very spirited debate was given by Miss Gladys Glenn and Opal Shep-her, affirmative and Mesdames Frank Glass and L. D. Vesey, negative. Subject: Resolved, "The Modern Girl of Today Is More Efficient Than the Girl of Our Grandmother's Day." The program closed with a playlet, "The City Cousins" by Misses Lois Ary and Ida Todd, Messrs. Ernest Geary
and Rowe Murry.

The ladies of Pleasant Valley
Aid Society held their October
meeting last Thursday with Mrs.
Paul Clemans, South Charleston.

Well-filled baskets contributed much to the enjoyment of the all day meeting.

The Jamestown Amusement
Club sponsored a party Friday evening at the K. P. Hall. The guests were entertained by several vaudeville acts presented by members of the club. Alfred McNeff of Ft. Stanton, New Mexico, a talented musician, was quite an addition to the orchestra. A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. About eighty guests were present.

Mesdames John and Warren Collette entertained "The Stitch and Batter Club" at the home of the former last Wednesday evening. A very enjoyable time was spent with needlework, music and contests. A two course luncheon was served at a late hour.

The many friends of Mrs.
Blanche Collette Irwin were sorry
to hear of the very serious accident that happened to her recently in an automobile collision near Jackson, Mich., where she has been living for several months. Friends are wishing her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. J. W. Fanning and daughters
Misses Dorothy and Virginia were Sunday guests of her father, T. G.
Walker, West Union, O.

Rev. and Mrs. Lindley Cook had as luncheon guests, Friday, Misses Bessie Wallace and Mattie Williams, Mrs. Archie G. Johnson and
Mrs. John Gray.

Mr. Lawrence Carpenter left Thursday for Denver, Colo., called
there by business interests.

Mrs. H. A. Black and Mrs. H. C.
Lienurance were Springfield visitors
the latter part of the week.
Miss Leontine Jenks and Mrs.

Levi Jenks attended the Artists' Concert given by Fritz Kreitzler at Memorial Hall, Columbus, last Thursday evening.

Mrs. E. L. Kutchins, of Columbus, was here a few days last week
looking after business affairs.

Col. I. T. Cummins, Miss Bessie
Cummins, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Garman, were visitors in Detroit, Mich., last week, the guests of Mr.
Garman's brothers and families. On the return trip they spent a day
and night with cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Longworth, Hicksville, O.

The Gleaners' Class of the U. P.
Church gave Miss Bessie Wallace
a "farewell" surprise Friday evening at the home of Miss Mattie Williams. Miss Wallace left for Chicago, Saturday, going from there to Washington, Ia.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Harper had
as guests over the week end Mr.
and Mrs. Albert Fink, Canton, and
Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Miller, Springfield. They came for a visit with their mother Mrs. Frances Miller, who has spent the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Harper. Mrs.
Miller returned Wednesday to her home in Huntington, Ind.

Mr. Frank Dewitt, Detroit,
Mich., spent Sunday with Mr. and
Mrs. Asa Shirk.

Miss Mildred Gates of Frankfort,
was the week end guest of Miss Charlotte Taylor.

Mrs. Glenn Jenks spent several days last week with her mother, Mrs. F. M. Wood of Ft. William.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thuma, were recent visitors in Xenia and Dayton.

Rev. L. L. Gray, Mr. and Mrs.
Alfred Ogan of Franklin, and Mrs.
F. W. Ogan attended the funeral

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation.
Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy Cascaret.

Cascaret, the bowels never form a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional Cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need
of any aid at all grows constantly less. What other cathartic has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently
about by Cascara will, nine times
in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the man-made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy Cascarets are its ideal form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are any who don't! Especially parents, because children love to take a Cascaret. After which, for days-on-end, the bowels will be seen to work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is that of regularity! Cascarets tone and train the bowels. But at the first sign of returning sluggishness another Cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't Cascarets, so WHY experiment
with laxatives? —Adv.

ALONZO GLASS DIES TUESDAY EVENING; PROMINENT FARMER

Alonzo Glass, 61, died at his home on the Jeffersonville Pike, four miles east of Jamestown, Tuesday evening at 5:20 o'clock. Complication of diseases, following falling health of two months, caused his death.

Mr. Glass was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Glass and was born on the Patton and Moorman farm, south of Jamestown. He moved to his present home when six years old and has lived there since.

He married Miss Elda Iva Robinson, of Washington C. H., in 1893, who preceded him in death several years.

He was a member of the Church of Christ of Pleasant View. He was a prominent farmer and was identified with the Jamestown Grange and Farm Bureau.

Surviving are seven children: Mrs. Oscar Moon, and Leonard Glass, Yellow Springs; Mrs. Alfred Webb, Russell and Earl Glass and Mrs. Leonard Mangum, all of Jamestown; and Lawrence Glass, at home. His mother, Mrs. James A. Glass, Jamestown, and three brothers, Andrew, and Harry, of Springfield and Oscar Glass, near Jamestown, also survive.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 o'clock at the home in charge of the Rev. H. L. Snyder, with burial in Jamestown Cemetery.

MRS. HOWARD CLARK DIES IN JAMESTOWN

Mrs. Effie Clark, 45, wife of Howard Clark, Jamestown, died at her home at that place, Wednesday morning at 7:15 o'clock. She had been ill several months, but death occurred suddenly from a complication of diseases.

Surviving are Mrs. Clark's husband, and one son, Norman, Dayton and one grandson. The deceased was born near Gunneville, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bowermaster.

One sister and three brothers, Mrs. Ed Stille, Detroit; and Clarence Bowermaster, St. Louis; Homer Bowermaster, Dayton; David Bowermaster, Chicago, also survive.

Funeral services have not been arranged.

CHURCH WILL HOLD RALLY DAY SUNDAY

"Rally Day" services will be held at the Elmer M. E. Church, south of Xenia, Sunday, October 14. A program by the children of the Sunday School and special music will feature the morning services, which start at 10 o'clock. Dinner will be served in the basement of the church at noon. The afternoon services will begin at 2 o'clock, at which time the Rev. G. C. Foltz, Jeffersonville, former pastor of the Elmer Church, will make an address.

All friends of the church are invited. Those attending the dinner are to bring a covered dish and sandwiches.

Have You Constant Backache?
A Persistent Backache Often
Warns of Sluggish Kidneys.

EVERY day find you tired and
achy? Suffer nagging, backache,
drowsy headaches and dizzy spells?
Are kidney secretions too frequent,
scanty or burning?

This often indicates sluggish kidneys
and shouldn't be neglected. Use
Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant
diuretic, increase the activity of the kidneys and thus aid them in carrying off waste impurities. Endorsed by users everywhere.

50,000 Users Endorse Doan's:

Mrs. L. De Arda, 2824 Darwin Ave.,
Los Angeles, Cal., says: "My kidneys didn't act right and my back was awfully lame and weak. I felt tired, had dizzy spells and suffered severely from pains in my back
that kept me from doing much around the house. One box of Doan's Pills rid me of the trouble and I haven't been bothered
since."

MISSION MEETING
The Missionary Society of the Church of Christ met in the church
parlors Wednesday afternoon, Oct.
10. Mrs. Jennie Buckles, president, presided during the business session and also conducted the devotional assisted by Mrs. H. S.
Snyder. Mrs. Braden Smith led the program for the afternoon, subject
"The Widow's Mite" or "A Study in Stewardship." Very interesting talks on the subject were given by a number of ladies.
Special music was given during the meeting.

Rev. H. S. Snyder, of the Church of Christ, will begin a series of meetings on Sunday morning, October 14. In the evening, the regular union meeting of the different churches will be held at that church.

The young people of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church
enjoyed a hayride, Wednesday evening, going to Rosemont farm,
"good eats" of wieners, etc., were
enjoyed.

GRANGE MEETS
The Jamestown Grange held its regular meeting Thursday evening
at the Grange Hall. A splendid program was presented by the lecturer, Mrs. B. B. Stackhouse. After
the business session the program
was opened by all joining in singing "America." Master Kenneth
Weller, reading; "What My Wife Wore for Her Wedding Dress,"
was told by Messrs. Ed Ballard, O.
D. Clark and Fred Lewis. A very spirited debate was given by Miss Gladys Glenn and Opal Shepley, affirmative and Messdames
Frank Glass and L. D. Vesey, negative. Subject: Resolved, "The Modern Girl of Today Is More Efficient Than the Girl of Our Grandmother's Day." The program
closed with a playlet, "The City
Cousins" by Misses Lois Ary and Ida Todd, Messrs. Ernest Geary
and Rowe Murry.

The ladies of Pleasant Valley
Aid Society held their October
meeting last Thursday with Mrs.
Paul Clemans, South Charleston.

Well filled baskets contributed much to the enjoyment of the all
day meeting.

The Jamestown Amusement
Club sponsored a party Friday
evening at the K. P. Hall. The guests were entertained by several vaudeville acts presented by members of the club. Alfred McNeff
of Ft. Stanton, New Mexico, a talented musician, was quite an addition to the orchestra. A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. About eighty guests were present.

Messdames John and Warren Collette entertained "The Stitch and Chatter Club" at the home of the former last Wednesday evening. A very enjoyable time was spent
with needlework, music and contests. A two course luncheon was served at a late hour.

The many friends of Mrs.
Blanche Collette Irwin, were sorry
to hear of the very serious accident
that happened to her recently in
an automobile collision near Jackson, Mich., where she has been living for several months. Friends are wishing her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. J. W. Fanning and daughters
Misses Dorothy and Virginia were Sunday guests of her father, T. G.
Walker, West Union, O.

Rev. and Mrs. Lindsey Cook had
as luncheon guests, Friday, Misses Bessie Wallace and Mattie Williams, Mrs. Archie G. Johnson and
Mrs. John Gray.

Mr. Lawrence Carpenter left
Thursday for Denver, Colo., called
there by business interests.

Mrs. H. A. Black and Mrs. H. C.
Lienau were Springfield visitors
the latter part of the week.

Miss Leontine Jenks and Mrs.

Levi Jenks attended the Artists' Concert given by Fritz Kretzler at Memorial Hall, Columbus, last
Thursday evening.

Mrs. E. L. Kutchins, of Columbus, was here a few days last week
looking after business affairs.

Col. I. T. Cummins, Miss Bessie
Cummins, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Garman, were visitors in Detroit, Mich., last week, the guests of Mr.
Garman's brothers and families. On
the return trip they spent a day
and night with cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Longworth, Hicksville, O.

The Gleaners' Class of the U. P.
Church gave Miss Bessie Wallace
a "farewell" surprise Friday evening at the home of Miss Mattie Williams. Miss Wallace left for Chicago, Saturday, going from
there to Washington, Ia.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Harper had
as guests over the week end Mr.
and Mrs. Albert Fink, Canton, and
Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Miller, Springfield. They came for a visit with their mother Mrs. Frances Miller, who has spent the summer with
her daughter, Mrs. Harper. Mrs.
Miller returned Wednesday to her
home in Huntington, Ind.

Mr. Frank Dewitt, Detroit,
Mich., spent Sunday with Mr. and
Mrs. Asa Shirk.

Miss Mildred Gates of Frankfort,
was the week end guest of Miss Charlotte Taylor.

Mrs. Glenna Jenks spent several days last week with her mother, Mrs. F. M. Wood of Ft. William.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thuma, were recent visitors in Xenia and Dayton.

Rev. L. L. Gray, Mr. and Mrs.
Alfred Ogan of Franklin, and Mrs.
F. W. Ogan attended the funeral

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation.
Nor need you! He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy Cascaret.

Cascaretizing the bowels never forms a laxative habit. It already formed, an occasional Cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular
walls of the bowels, and their need
of any aid at all grows constantly
less. What other cathartic has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently
about by Cascara will, nine times
in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening
salts, or any of the man-made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells

CASCARETS
They Work While You Sleep!

us candy Cascarets are its ideal
form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are any who don't! Especially parents, because children love to take a Cascaret. After which, for days on-end, the bowels will be seen to
work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is
that of regularity! Cascarets tone
and train the bowels. But at the first sign of returning sluggishness another Cascaret is as effective as
the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't Cascarets, so WHY experiment
with laxatives? —Adv.

as a pupil at the Pep Golden School, Cincinnati, for a course of instruction in dancing and acting.

Mr. W. E. Reid was in Columbus the latter part of the week,
looking after business affairs.

Miss Jeanette Nelberger, and Mr.
Alfred Parker were recent guests of Mrs. G. R. Bargdill and Miss Belle Nelberger.

Miss Mary Jenkins has returned from a few days' visit with Mrs.
Forest Allen Debrae, Dayton.

Miss Sara Short spent Sunday in Xenia with Mr. and Mrs. J. C.
Short, all going from there for a visit with Mr. Jack McGrew of Blue Ash, O.

Mrs. James Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Spahr, Miss Helen Spahr, Mr. John Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Roberts were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. James Pinn and family of Dayton.

Mrs. Otto Thorpe and two daughters of Columbus, came Friday evening for a week end visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D.
Buckley. Mr. Thorpe joined them
Saturday and all returned home,
Sunday evening.

The 4-Door Sedan Body by Fisher

NEW VALUE Brings New Heights of Public Favor

As a result of the new value offered by today's Pontiac—as a consequence of its greater power, higher speed and smarter style—this low priced six is winning great new heights of public favor.

Pontiac Six now provides new motoring luxury. Staunch, beautiful bodies by Fisher—smaller, sturdier wheels with larger tires—an engine of 186-cubic inches displacement—the cross-flow radiator—the G-M-R cylinder head... all these and many other advancements are emphasized by the performance supremacy resulting from new carburetion and manifolding.

That's why today's Pontiac Six is attracting thousands of new buyers. That's why it is winning leadership in the low-priced six-cylinder field.
